Irate homeowners to protest loss of school

A crowd of irate homeowners is expected to interrupt the otherwise calm evening that faces the Murray Elementary School District Board of Trustees at 8 p.m. Monday night as the parents in the Valley Trails district of Pleasanton will react to the elimination of a school planned for that area.

Originally MESD had planned a school in the Morrison development and 10 acres were set aside by the developer for that school.

However, MESD, like many other agencies and districts in the area, was caught by surprise when the population failed to grow as predicted — which is reason that the district had to ask the voters for more money this past election.

Unfortunately for Valley Trails residents, none of that money can go for building new schools and the state will not allot any money for a new school unless the population of the district increases by some 400 or 500 students—which would require a population increase of some 1,500 to 2,000 over the very least.

At last week's MESD meeting, Morrison de an official request to have the 10 acres set aside for a school site returned so that homes could be built there. Morrison is paying taxes on the land and legally can ask the district to either buy it or allow it to be developed.

Since the district doesn't have the money, it is highly unlikely that it can purchase the 10 acres; therefore, it must give the land back to be developed.

This has aroused some ire among the homeowners of the area, who were promised a school when they moved in. They are expected to appear in force at tomorrow night's meeting but the district really has little choice.

Even if they decide to do nothing they are in danger because the developer will file an inverse condemnation suit that will require the district to buy the land. Inverse condemnation comes about when a city or public agency refuses to let the owner of a property develop it within a reasonable length of time in accordance with local zoning.

Since the homes that the developer wants to build there are within the zoning, and since he does own the land and pay taxes on it, the law says that he has the right to develop it. If MESD doesn't want him to, it can buy the land.

It doesn't have the money — and apparently can't get it from the state — so it looks Valley Trails will be without a school.

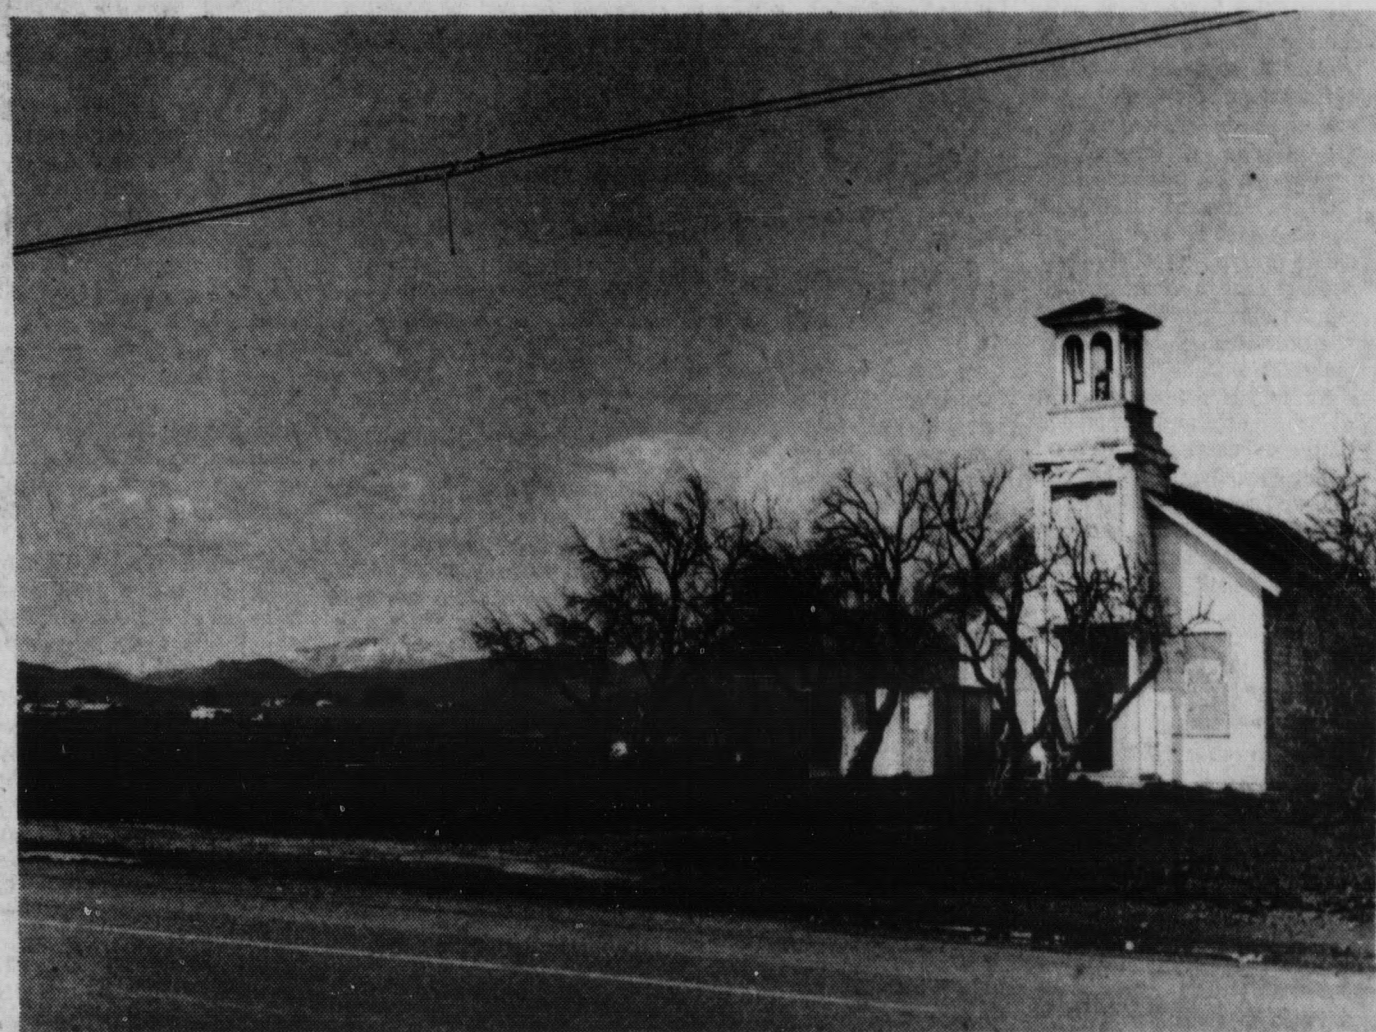

Otherwise, the last meeting for trustees Art Laursen and John Henderson should be fairly routine, concerning as it does requests to build a softball field at Murray School, an official canvass of votes from the March 4 election and the rescinding of the election that was scheduled for May 27 in case the last one didn't pass.

The board will approve an official meet and confer proposal, if all goes as expected, to give to the local teachers, who have been warming up for what looks like a long and involved negotiation session, an official counteroffer.

The Certificated Employees Council (CEC), which is the body that represents the teachers, will also give a presentation.

Churches seek use permits

Alameda County Bureau
HAYWARD — Two valley churches will come before the Alameda County Zoning Administrator today.

The Calvary Temple of the Assemblies of God of Livermore is seeking a conditional use permit to allow final inspection of the structures without the condition that a sewer connection agreement with the City of Livermore exists. The church is located at 2200 Arroyo Rd., south of the intersection with Bess Avenue.

The Golden Gate Primitive Baptist Church, located at 2950 Niles Canyon Rd. at the intersection with Palomares Road, is seeking permission to utilize a mobile home for caretakers' quarters on the property. The land is zoned for agricultural use.

Also on the agenda is an application from Lane Ward for a variance to divide a parcel into two building sites, of 83 and 43 acres each. The property is located at 1133 Happy Valley Rd. Neither of the parcels would have frontage on an approved road.

Many definitions of LAFCO

A dirty word? Or are they nice guys?

What's a LAFCO?

If you ask Livermore, the answer is liable to be unprintable.

If you ask Pleasanton, the answer might well be a shudder of apprehension.

If you ask Dublin, the answer will be "Why it's those nice folks at the county who helped us form the district for our new library."

Actually, LAFCO is not a protean beast, capable of changing shapes and attitudes to alternately frighten and charm its charges, but simply the Local Agency Formation Commission.

LAFCO was formed in 1963 under the Knox - Nesbit Act of the California legislature and was given one basic assignment — to review and approve (or disapprove) every proposal to create a new governmental agency or to annex land to a previously existing agency.

And that is why Dublin likes LAFCO—the agency approved the library's proposal to set up a library district and the voters within the district approved a tax increase last year that will move the Dublin library out of rented quarters and into a brand new building of its own.

And once LAFCO approved the Dublin library district, almost nothing could rend it asunder. There is no appeal on a LAFCO decision; the board of supervisors, the planning commission, the mayor, even the governor cannot overturn a LAFCO ruling. The only route of appeal is through the courts, and in the 12 years of LAFCO's existence, the courts have shown extreme reluctance to overturn LAFCO decisions unless a procedural error was made or a fair hearing was denied.

Despite the welter of local agencies that constantly seem to be having elections that no one knows anything about or even cares about, this powerful group of five men is appointed — in fact, four of them actually appoint the fifth.

By law, in Alameda County, LAFCO is made up of two supervisors, two mayors or city councilmen and a member from the public.

The supervisors choose amongst themselves for their two representatives, presently Joseph Bort and John Murphy.

The mayors or city councilmen are selected through the County Mayors' Conference and their choices are Mayor Art Flegel of Piedmont and Mayor Jack Maltester of San Leandro. The fifth member is a Fremont builder, Harold Murphy. They all serve four year terms, though the terms do not run concurrently.

And before the first LAFCO members had served out their full terms, in 1965, the legislature gave LAFCO some more power under the District Reorganization Act. Since then, LAFCO has had the final say on mergers and consolidations between agencies, although they never have had the power to initiate such actions.

In other words, LAFCO might like to see the Valley Community Services District and the City of Pleasanton combine — however, it would be powerless to implement that consolidation unless another group started the procedure.

In 1971, however, LAFCO received the power that has Livermore sputtering with fury and Pleasanton shivering in anticipation.

At that time, the Knox - Nesbit Act was amended to require that LAFCO develop spheres of influence throughout the unincorporated areas of the county.

And what is a "sphere of influence"?

"That," says Roland Mayne, the executive officer of LAFCO, "is the $64 question." Indeed it is — just ask Livermore.

That city is presently involved in a discussion with LAFCO concerning the area that is popularly known as New Town.

Originally, the Las Positas Valley, where New Town is to be constructed, was in Livermore's sphere of influence and LAFCO took it away.

First, what is a sphere of influence? And second, why did LAFCO change its mind?

Mayne describes a sphere of influence as "the future boundary line for a city or district". In other words, the limit of the expansion of a city

Mori takes oath of office

The clock on the wall recorded the time at 2:05. It had been little more than another bustling, confusing day of organized administrative confusion on the floor of the Assembly. One first-time visitor to this political pit turned to the reporter and asked, "Are they really in session right now?"

Not until Leo McCarthy, the Speaker of the Assembly, mounted that imposing rostrum for one of his rare appearances did the mob scene below him come to any kind of order.

"...an event of great importance," Speaker McCarthy was intoning. The gathering was suddenly hushed, the legislators as if by some musical - chair magic all found their proper places. An "official escort" of eight members of the Assembly appeared at the rear of the chamber, creating a wedge just like in professional football. The dapper, diminutive man in the Glen plaid suit with vest, was almost lost in the center of that convoy.

They moved quickly down the center aisle. A bustle of officialdom waited at the rostrum. Irene Mori was somewhere in that crowd. The Assembly applause started as the convoy approached the rostrum, swelled by a packed gallery that looked for all the world like "Pleasanton Day at the Fair." Everyone was standing now, the applause was spirited and prolonged.

Shiro Mori, the "fourth son" (Shiro) of his father, economics professor at Chabot Junior College and one-term mayor of The City of Pleasanton, was about to become the newest member of the California Legislature.

The rites were brief, traditional, explicit. "To serve until the fifteenth day of December, nineteen hundred and seventy six," Judge Robert Bostick intoned. "I will bear truth and allegiance," Mori promised. And that was it. The applause again, a standing ovation, handshakes from the speaker, the speaker pro tem, a kiss for Irene Mori. Leo McCarthy called for order, and invited "for one of the very few times in his career" the new assemblyman to address his colleagues from that high podium.

"I wish to thank my many friends who are with us here today," Assemblyman Mori was saying. "I feel honored to be among such great people...to share this responsibility."

The remarks were measured, with a nice touch of humility, but exuding unusual confidence from the freshman member of this distinguished gathering. Mori did not read from any prepared text. He appeared for all the world like a seasoned member of the house, making his 200th address to his colleagues.

"I will keep forever in mind those who have placed their confidence in me. And I ask the good lord to give me the wisdom I need, and to be able to discern wisdom from political expediency."

In the din of a new round of applause, one veteran member of the Assembly turned to his colleague and remarked: "That was one hell of a speech. Who is this guy?"

Fifteen months from now, when he must run once again in the primary test for the 15th Assembly District, and every two years thereafter, Shiro Mori, fourth son and proud father of five, will hope to remind his constituency who he is, and what he has done to earn their continued support.

But as the delegation of home-town boosters filed out of that chamber, leaving Assemblyman Mori to the legislative tasks of the day, the occupant of voting station number 73 looked for all the world like a man who would not long remain in the back row of any legislative gathering.

He's officially an assemblyman now. Floyd Mori is shown taking the oath of office in the state capitol at Sacramento.

Controversy for 1976

That nuclear initiative

In 1964, the citizens of California were blasted by a seemingly endless political campaign for and against Proposition 13 — which concerned open housing and occupancy laws in the state.

In 1974, Proposition 9 — the Campaign Reform Act — unleashed similar passions, and sophisticated campaigns were launched on both sides of the issue, just as in 1964, foretelling doom if the proper vote was not cast.

In 1976, Californians will have the opportunity to vote on a proposition that has the potential to be more controversial, more emotional and more confusing than either of the two mentioned above.

The proposition is called the Nuclear Safeguards Act and although the vote is over a year away, already the wheels are starting to turn to guarantee its passage, or on the other side, its defeat.

A proponent of the proposition describes it as follows: "The Nuclear Initiative is NOT a moratorium on fission power plants, although its opponents will call it one. It PERMITS California to go forward with existing and future nuclear power plants, provided that the federally imposed liability limit on nuclear accidents is removed, that the effectiveness of the safety systems of nuclear power plants is verified by testing, and that satisfactory methods for managing the resulting radioactive wastes are devised."

Dr. John Holdren of the University of California at Berkeley, one of the most respected critics of nuclear power, wrote that description, and it is certainly correct as far as predicting what the opponents are saying.

The opponents are, of course, Pacific Gas & Electric, General Electric and other large corporations with a stake in nuclear power, and they do indeed claim that the bill will halt the use of nuclear power in the state.

That indeed could happen, but only if two conditions are not met. The first, and perhaps most complex, is the removal of the liability limitations established by the Price - Anderson Act of 1957; the second is that the state legislature should be satisfied that nuclear power is safe within five years. If those two conditions are fulfilled, the Nuclear Safeguards Initiative will have little effect on the power industry in California; if they are not, however, the bill calls for the gradual reduction in use of nuclear power in the state and the eventual elimination of a power source that the legislature has determined to be unsafe.

It is almost a certainty that the proposition will make the ballot in 1976. Presently, proponents claim to have 470,000 signatures, and they have until April 7 to collect more. They only need 313,000 valid signatures and even granting a maximum of 30 per cent of invalid signatures, the initiative still has over 313,000 without collecting any more.

Naturally, the power companies have fought the initiative from the beginning, relying primarily on scare tactics — such as, and we quote, "its basic purpose is to prohibit the construction of new nuclear plants and phase out the operation of existing plants."

The supporters claim that their basic purpose is merely to insure that nuclear power is safe before committing vast amounts of money and construction to a power source that as yet is not proven to be secure.

Of course, the nuclear power industry says that nuclear power is safe. In that case, say the supporters of the Nuclear Initiative the liability limits set up by the Price - Anderson Act are no longer necessary.

Nuclear initiative

Here we must pause briefly and explain the Price - Anderson Act, which was passed in 1957, renewed in 1967 and which will come up for renewal again in 1977. The bill first limits the total amount of liability for a nuclear accident to $560 million; it limits the liability for a single power company to $120 million. Above $120 million, the federal government is the insurer, as it is for many other industries, but there is that maximum limit.

Supporters of the Nuclear Initiative make two points concerning the Price - Anderson Act. First, if nuclear power is so safe, why is it necessary to limit liability? Second, they say, any limit to liability is questionable because no one knows the effects of a nuclear accident of major proportions.

Holdren says "competent, well - informed scientists and technologists differ — and the margin of disagreement is large — concerning what the chances and potential consequences of a major reactor accident really are." Therefore limiting the total liability is a direct threat to the public, who then would have to foot the bill if something major went wrong.

And of course, their most telling point is simple. If, as the power companies have so often and so expensively stated, nuclear power is safer than walking across the street, then there should be no problem in getting insurance companies to insure power plants. If, on the other hand, insurance companies — the most conservative but certainly one of the most Establishment group of corporations — are unconvinced about the safety of nuclear power, then apparently it isn't as secure as the power companies are saying.

The foes of the Nuclear Initiative have a spokesman in the California Council for Environmental and Economic Balance (CCEEB), which raises several objections to the bill, aside from claiming that the purpose of the bill is to "prohibit" nuclear power.

First, they claim the proposition, if passed, would suffer the fate of Proposition 13 in 1964 — the courts would declare it unconstitutional. They cite the case of the Northern States Power Company versus Minnesota, which places federal law in atomic energy above state law. And since federal law does not require the safeguards in the initiative, CCEEB proponents claim, it would be unconstitutional.

"Our lawyers think it's constitutional," said Richard Grossman of People for Proof, the group sponsoring the proposal, and they have a case of their own to cite — the Colorado Public Interest Group versus the Environmental Protection Agency.

In terms of lawyers, at least, that issue is undecided. The fate of the proposition, once it reaches the ballot, though, will belong to the people of California — if they can wade their way through the contradictory statements on both sides.

Some small complaints have come out of the CCEEB, claiming that the legislature should have initiated any action on the matter. Grossman, the Communications Director for People for Proof, cites the Rasmussen Report (the most laudatory and widely - quoted defense of nuclear power) for their reply.

The report concludes, says Grossman, that what levels of risks are acceptable "should be decided by a broad segment of the public."

"We're only taking them at their word," said Grossman, and the power companies don't seem to be too pleased at the idea.

(This is the first of a two part series on the Nuclear Safeguards Initiative. Next, the case for the defense — in this case, the public utilities and power companies of the state who are in wholehearted disagreement with the proposal).

Livermore sets pace

Two city schools 'Exemplary'

LIVERMORE — Marilyn and Arroyo Mocho Schools have individualized early childhood programs that are "exemplary" in the eyes of the state.

This means the state has designated their programs as good examples for other districts to follow, and may lead to some visitors in the next year from other district.

State evaluation teams visited the two schools this spring to monitor the well - funded early childhood programs that had begun in September. All schools completing their first year's early childhood program (for primary pupils) were rated on 45 points.

"Exemplary" standing was given to both schools on the point: "There is evidence of effort toward comprehensive restructuring of the learning environment to meet the unique needs, talents, interests and abilities of each student."

Ironically, Arroyo Mocho's own school - wide evaluating committee, as well as the district's evaluating team, gave the school a "6" rating ("very good") on that point in contrast to the state's "9" rating.

Marilyn had not rated itself. Besides the top - ranking "9" rating, Arroyo Mocho earned "8", or "superior," ratings in health screening and referral, active program to enlist parent support, and a program that encourages home - school communication in easily understood language.

At Marilyn, "superior" parts of the program included "Psycho - motor self - esteem, health screening, referral and followup, parent assistance in the classroom and a program that encourages home - school communication."

"Excellent" (7) marks went to Arroyo Mocho for diagnosis, math charting and math and reading documentation, health followup, parent planning and assistance, in - service teacher and volunteer programs, staff involvement in designing the staff development program, and articulation of all programs within the school.

Marilyn was rated "excellent" for pupil progress documentation in reading and math, balanced curriculum, multicultural activities, effective school advisory committee, parent involvement, active program to enlist parent support and effective use of community resources and parent talents.

Most other programs were rated "good" or "very good," while none got a "needs improvement" or "limited effectiveness" rating.

Suggestions to improve Arroyo Mocho's program included better record keeping, use of volunteers and organization of materials; adding an oral language aspect to the curriculum; adding an instructional aide to the advisory committee and focusing children's choices around a "skills continuum."

Staff members were praised for their "overall concern," parents for their "enthusiastic and dedicated support." Examiners were impressed with the parent training, child care and monthly information meetings.

In addition, examiners liked the way Arroyo Mocho staff worked within the limitations of their inadequate portable school building; they thought "the leadership and school attitude toward parent participation is fine," teachers were lauded for making major reorganizations to improve their program, and pre - school canvassing for health needs was called "fine."

Marilyn's criticism centered around records: "refine the skills continuum in reading, oral language and math," code material towards student skills profiles, avoid duplication of records, relate student contacts to the skills profile.

Examiners liked the health services, praised the extensive efforts made to improve the program and said parents were "enthusiastic" and "supportive."

In addition, the school has added to the variety of materials and opportunities for children, the psycho - motor program 'has much variety,' the multi - cultural angle "is well thought out, and integrates parent and community members in the planning."

Support personnel "seems well integrated and involved in the regular classroom program," communication between the school, community and parents is open, parents feel well informed.

The program leadership by the principal and preparation for the review was "very organized and clear."

Walt Capri is principal of Marilyn and Lloyd Teel heads Arroyo Mocho. Jack Waggoner is director of elementary education for the district and has been a tireless supporter of the new state Early Childhood Education program.

The schools' good marks can mean more funding for Livermore in the coming year, if the state government releases expansion money for more ECE programs. The project started two years ago with the thought that lots of attention and fine teaching in the primary grades can help head off learning problems in later school years and save money in remedial teaching.

All school districts will be required to have special programs for their primary pupils.

Support to be asked by PARC

The Preserve Ara Ridgeland Committee (PARC) will soon be soliciting support for a Ridgeland Preserve from more than 300 Bay Area groups and agencies.

A resolution passed by PARC supports the establishment of a Ridgeland Preserve which would be a "continuous band of agriculture, open space, wilderness, parks and trails" through the hill area from Richmond on the north through Contra Costa and Alameda counties to Pacheco Pass on the south. The 1,000 square mile area is classified as the Diablo Range.

According to the resolution, PARC supports "ways to guarantee agricultural open space uses with equitable assessment of land; acquisition where public access is desirable for recreational uses compatible with environmental protection; trails linking parks and providing access from urban areas; and increased non-motorized recreational access to public watershed lands."

Margaret Tracy, PARC coordinator, said PARC members will soon be soliciting support for its resolution from the 270 environmental groups in the Bay Area and from Bay Area governmental agencies.

For further information concerning the resolution, contact Tracy at 447-0115.

and district and at the same time the area which would affect the fate of the city.

Although many areas in the Valley are under the sphere of influence of either Pleasanton or Livermore there are other areas that are unincorporated spheres of influence — meaning that the county alone will determine the future of that area.

"We spent the better part of three hearings on the question of whether Livermore was willing or able to service that area," says Mayne, and eventually LAFCO decided that Livermore would never develop that land. Therefore, the county felt that, since Livermore wasn't going to take responsibility for it, then the county would.

So LAFCO stripped the New Town area from Livermore's sphere of influence and the procedure began through the county, rather than through the city, to develop New Town.

Obviously, that decision was unpopular and highly important, not only to Livermore but to everyone in the Valley.

Pleasanton is next. LAFCO has just started its survey of all the districts in the county and where their spheres of influence (and thus their future development and growth) shall lie.

Understandably, Pleasanton is somewhat nervous, as is Dublin. One of LAFCO's many guidelines is that there should be as few governing agencies as possible; they are more committed to the idea of unifying Dublin and Pleasanton that preserving separate communities by that guideline.

Thus, the setting of spheres of influence, and eventual decisions resulting from those spheres, will probably be more in favor of unifying the two communities than anything else.

Mayne has been LAFCO's executive officer since 1971, but he's been "around the edges of it all the time (since 1963)." He has seen many controversial decisions come down in that time and surprisingly, he doesn't view the Pleasanton - Dublin determinations as being as controversial as some upcoming decisions in the Hayward area.

Unless of course, the legislature decides to add yet another power to the portfolio possessed by the understated, unanswerable and almost unknown body that has agencies throughout the county in varying states of mental anguish.

Five city seats open

LIVERMORE — Five city advisory committee seats are open for application by interested citizens, according to City Clerk Dorothy Hock.

There are two positions open on the Beautification Committee and one each on the Housing Authority, Transportation Advisory Committee and Industrial Advisory Committee.

All positions are filled by city council appointment. Anyone interested in serving on one of the committees should contact Miss Hock at City Hall, 2250 First St. (corner of S. Livermore Avenue), 447-2100, or city council member.

There are no formal applications to be filled out for the positions but citizens may submit resumes to City Hall. Contact Miss Hock for more information.

Is Fifth grade out of program?

PLEASANTON — At least one family in the Harvest Park School attendance area is concerned that fifth graders attending that school may not be able to participate in the district's Outdoor Education program.

Jim and Cherie Smith said that talks with school principal Dale Hudson had not produced a definite answer to date. The program is in its third year and involves several hundred fifth grade students from other Pleasanton Elementary district schools. "All except those at Harvest Park apparently."

It had been indicated to the Smiths earlier that there probably would not be any room at the camps located in the Santa Cruz Mountains. Yet, Smith claims that at least one counselor at Amador Valley High School had said all of the approximately 120 fifth graders could be accommodated.

Smith said it was his understanding the fifth grade teachers at Harvest Park did not wish to participate in the program, citing no district funds and lack of a qualified naturalist at the camps as reasons.

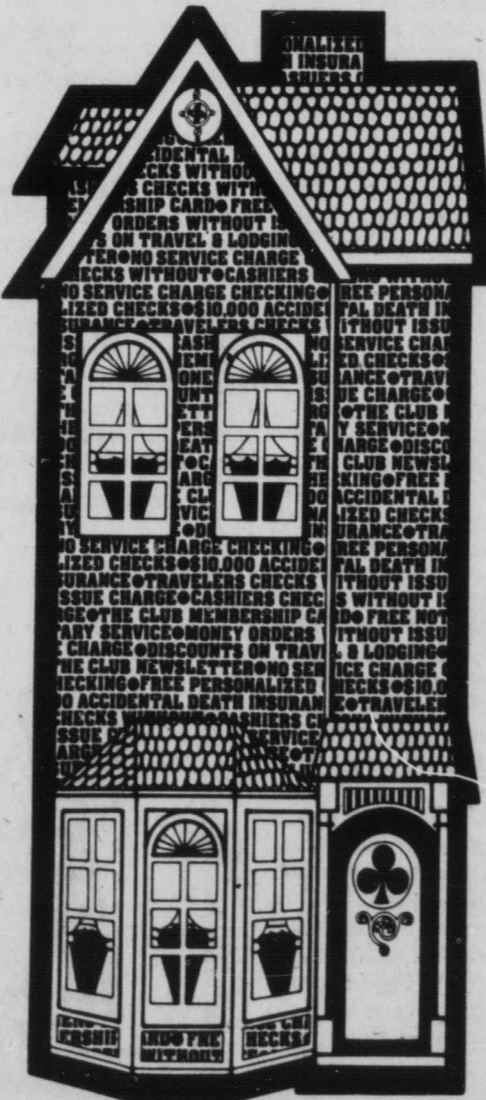

Additionally, Smith claims he has been unable to get the names of the fifth grade parents from the school so he could call a meeting of all interested in the program.

He had contacted about 20 parents several weeks ago "to get the ball rolling." Outdoor Education began two years ago and has expanded to include not only Valley View, but Alisal and Fairlands.

Parents in the Harvest Park - Walnut Grove attendance area interested in the students gaining access to the program can contact the Smiths at 462-2694.

Pleasanton artist

Historic scenes winning praise

The newest and hottest entry in the "poster war" could be a black and white offering of downtown Pleasanton scenes... a hardware store, old city hall, an early-era bank and a 19th century dwelling. There are seven scenes in all. All originals. And all the work of a talented Pleasanton housewife who doubles as a Livermore High School teacher of English, Pamela Brekas is also one mighty fine artist. She won warm plaudits from the Pleasanton Bicentennial Steering Committee on Wednesday, and now only the final financial details remain before thousands of Mrs. Brekas' drawings are sold throughout the community, and beyond.

"We hope to sell 1000 or more of the posters at the Good Times Parade on May 3," explained Brad Hirst, finance chairman for the city's bicentennial panel. An initial order of 2000 of the 16 by 22 inch posters is being considered, "with the option of ordering several thousand more as the demand warrants," Hirst says. Also available throughout these "bicentennial 18 months" will be individual, 8 by 10 inch copies of the Brekas pen and ink drawings. The series will start with the issuance of the Century House rendering, to be followed later by the drawing of old City Hall, Kohn Hardware, the former First National Bank Building, Pleasanton Hotel, the Carriage Corners and the Veterans Memorial Building. The official city seal and a rendering of the Bicentennial theme complete the poster.

Rec district praised

"For persistence and dedication," says the plaque, "in acquiring the historically significant Olivina - Sycamore property, an outstanding and unusual grove of 365 - acres of California sycamore trees and native growth." Admiring the award are Livermore Area Recreation and Park District (LARP) chairman Les Knott and general manager Bill Payne, at the awards banquet in San Diego where the California Association of Park and Recreation Commissioners and Board members met recently.

West Wind youth hub pegs plans

PLEASANTON — Arts and crafts, bicycle trips, rock climbing, a rock concert and recreational activities are on the agenda spring for the West Wind Youth Center.

On Wednesday, the Junior Bike Club will meet at 7 p.m. at West Wind and the Sailing Club will meet at 8 p.m.

West Wind will also sponsor a 200-mile bicycle excursion to Yosemite National Park March 25-29, over Easter vacation.

On Wednesday, March 26, the Rock Climbing Club will meet at 8:30 p.m. at the youth center.

Activities planned for April include a Back Packing meeting Wednesday, April 9, and an excursion to the "Pink Floyd" Concert at the San Francisco Cow Palace Saturday, April 9.

On-going activities at West Wind include arts and crafts every Saturday including candle making, batik and tie-dye, macrame, brass wire jewelry, copper enamel and more.

Recreational activities at the center include pool, tennis, table, chess, air hockey, electronic pong, elimination and "Gotcha", snack bar and stereo.

Still critical

CASTRO VALLEY — The victim of Monday's Palace Motel fire in Livermore, 75-year-old Joe Wilson, was reported still in critical condition Tuesday afternoon.

Wilson ran from his flaming room shortly before 3 p.m., his clothes ablaze. He was rushed to Valley Memorial Hospital then transferred to Castro Valley's Eden Hospital.

He is suffering from second and third degree burns on hands, head and shoulders, according to hospital spokeswoman.

Wilson is reportedly from Santa Rosa.

Energy Crisis

The public is invited to an "energy study" conducted by the League of Women Voters four consecutive days this week.

The first half of the study examines the true proportions of the energy crisis with Marion and Arnold Clark.

The program will be presented three times in Livermore and once in Pleasanton for the convenience of those interested in attending: Monday, March 17 at 8 p.m., 829 Arbor Ct., Livermore; Tuesday at 9:30 a.m., 723 Hazel St., Livermore; Wednesday at 1 p.m., 220 Garnet Dr., Livermore; and Thursday, 9:30 a.m., 4302 Muirwood Dr., Pleasanton.

For information contact Marion Clark at 443-2656.

Valley Artisans

The Valley Artisans gather Wednesday, March 19 from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. with a noon break, at the Pleasanton home of Mary Lee DeCarli.

Dee Wilson will discuss Seminole Indian Patchwork, with examples of work she has done and a demonstration of the technique.

Members are to bring materials to create their own. Patchwork: three strips of contrasting print or plain cloth, each strip cut 3 inches by 15 inches with the three sewed together into one 15 inch piece; a piece of solid-colored cloth 8 inches by 15 inches to be used as a background; a length of inch-wide braid or lace, together with pins, scissors, scotch-tape and ruler. Sewing machines will be available.

For further information, call 443-5504.

Halstead - Bauer

The United Presbyterian Church of Pleasanton was the setting for the wedding of Jennie Halstead of San Ramon and Robert James Bauer of Dublin.

Jennie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O.S. Greenwood of Sacramento and is a real estate agent.

Robert is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Bauer of Stockton, graduate of College of Pacific and is an assistant city engineer in Piedmont.

Art comes alive!

Eighteen members of The Valley Artists will be on hand for on-the-spot demonstrations of art techniques in several media during the guild's Fourth Annual Art Show at Liberty House in Dublin beginning Wednesday.

Each demonstration will be in progress approximately three hours. All activities at the show are open to the public at no charge.

Carl Anders will demonstrate oil painting techniques at noon Wednesday, March 19, followed by an acrylics demonstration by Alice Dettloff at 6 p.m.

Friday demonstrators, March 21 are Bette Hoffman at 1 p.m. and Mary Langham at 6:30 p.m., both in oil techniques.

Five artists demonstrate Saturday, March 22: Claire Haratani in watercolor and Lou Ann Styles at 10:30 a.m.; Shirley Rencher Miller in Sumi brush painting and Olive Naylor in charcoal portraits at 1 p.m.; and Carl Anders in oil painting at noon.

Pen and ink Victorian sketches will be made by Terri Buncie at noon Sunday, March 23, with Kathy Jahn in oil painting. Mary Toman in watercolor and Chuck Rose in acrylics at 1 p.m.

Olive Naylor creates charcoal portraits Tuesday, March 25 at 12:30. Wednesday, March 26 artists are Phyllis Wentworth and Kathy Jahn in oil painting at 1 p.m.

Lou Ann Styles is featured in charcoal portrait sketching at 1 p.m. Thursday, March 27, with Friday artists Georgia Minshall in oil at 10 a.m. and Margo Kirkevoog in watercolor at 1 p.m.

Art demonstrations on the final day of the show, Saturday, March 29, are John and Dorothy Harder in oil painting at 10 a.m. and Pat Smith in watercolor at noon.

Valley Artists 4th opens tomorrow

Winning artwork has been selected from over 220 entries for the Valley Artists Fourth Annual Art Show which opens tomorrow for a two-week run at the Liberty House (formerly Rhodes) in Dublin in conjunction with the Dublin Spring Festival.

Top prize, Best of Show, was awarded to the oil portrait entitled "The Collector," by William Sala of Hayward. Sala also received first place in the oil painting category.

Jo Coleman of Pleasanton captured first place in the watercolor category with her entry "Diablo Waking." Her painting "Men from Hotarious" received a third place in that category.

In the graphics category, "White Boat" by William Harris of Hayward took first place. Another Harris entry, "Seventeen Years After," was awarded second place in the graphics category.

The art show runs March 17 through March 29 (Easter Saturday) and is open to the public at no charge during Liberty House regular store hours: Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.; and Sunday from noon to 5 p.m.

Art - in - action demonstrations of techniques in oil, acrylic and watercolor media, charcoal portraits, Sumi brush painting, and pen-ink Victorian sketches will be featured throughout the show, beginning Wednesday.

Visitors to the show will be asked to submit their votes for the picture they like best. A final award, Most Popular, will be given to the piece with the highest tally.

Raffle of an oil painting by Diane Axton of Pleasanton will be held the last day of the show, according to general show chairman Mary Langham, also of Pleasanton.

Judges Sydney and Fred Herschleb and Dan Peterson

Dublin Fest pancakes

The Dublin Festival Pancake Breakfast will be serving pancakes, ham and eggs, fruit juice and beverages today from 7 a.m. until noon at the Shannon Community Center.

Cost of the repast is $2.50 for adults and $1.75 for children.

Proceeds from the event sponsored by the Dublin Women's Club the Amador Valley Scholarship Fund.

Drivers needed to take seniors to meal program

An appeal for volunteers to drive senior citizens from Livermore to Pleasanton to enable them to participate in a congregate meal program, has been sounded by the Senior Citizens Multi-Service Center.

Anyone able to provide transportation between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m., Monday through Friday, is asked to call 443-1150.

Altamont spring rail tour

A scenic spring tour through Niles Canyon and over Altamont Pass via a special excursion train has been scheduled April 12 through the efforts of the Pacific Locomotive Association.

The excursion train, first in the Bay Area since the advent of Amtrak and first passenger service over Altamont Pass in many years, will travel the usually "freight only" Southern Pacific route.

Departing at 10:30 a.m. from the Amtrak station in Oakland, the train will tour the rolling green hills of Niles and Altamont, the farmlands of the central valley in spring bloom (Tracy, Martinez), circling back to Oakland along the shoreline of San Francisco Bay.

The train returns to Oakland's Amtrak station at 4:30 p.m.

Round-trip excursion fare for the day-long trip is $19.50. Proceeds will benefit development of the Pacific Locomotive Association's operating railroad museum at Castro Point near Richmond. Tickets are available from the association at 54 Hancock St., San Francisco, CA 94114.

For further information contact Henry Luna at 398-2994 or Robert Hogan at 474-8711.

Grandma Rabbit at Easter fair

"Grandma Rabbit," Mrs. Leona McGlinchey, will be one of the many attractions at this year's Children's Easter Fair sponsored by Toyland Chapter of Children's Home Society.

The Fair opens Saturday, March 22 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Livermore Recreation Center.

In addition to "Grandma Rabbit" in her reading corner, children can enjoy a continuous show of cartoons, games, an Easter egg hunt and art-in-action.

Other events scheduled are the performance of the Carol Jean Dancers at 10:30 a.m. and an Easter bonnet contest and parade at 11:30 a.m. with prizes for the winners.

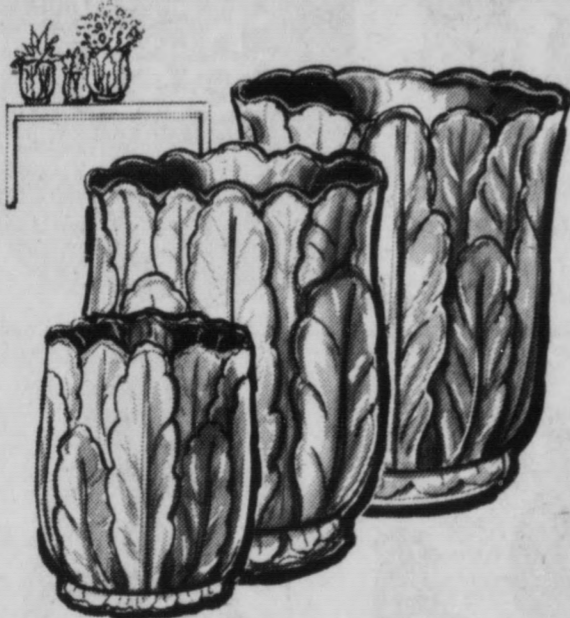

A special feature will be The Banana Splits, appearing in person, at 12:15 p.m., 1:15 p.m. and 2:15 p.m. A watercolor painting donated by Livermore artist, Don Larsen, will be raffled at 2:30 p.m.

Hot dogs, juice and other refreshments will be sold. A boutique for Mom to enjoy will have many Easter items made by members of Toyland Chapter.

The Children's Easter Fair is the major fund raising event of the year of Toyland Chapter and helps finance child welfare and family counseling services provided to the community by Children's Home Society.

Tickets purchased in advance are $1 for children and adults. For those who prefer to buy tickets at the door, admission will be $1.50. Tickets are available from any member of Toyland Chapter, CHS or by calling 455-0623 or 447-4979.

Courses in Real Estate To Be Offered At Valley High Schools

Mike Connolly, Director of Continuing Education at Amador Valley School District has decided to offer two Real Estate classes in the coming spring quarter which starts March 31 and ends June 6. One class will meet the needs of those seeking a career in Real Estate and the other is for those who would like the practical information which buyers and sellers should know before venturing into the Real Estate Market.

The "Real Estate License Preparation" class will be offered at Amador High School on Thursday evenings. The class will cover Real Estate math, law, appraisal, contracts, finance and business opportunity. Students will apply for an examination date to coincide with the completion of the course. Books and materials for this class will cost $10.00.

On Tuesday evenings at Dublin High School, "Real Estate for Buyers and Sellers" will be offered. The practical matters involved in buying and selling Real Estate will be covered. Students will learn to evaluate their own particular circumstances to better know which course of action is best suited to their needs.

Pre-registration will be held at Dublin High School on Monday and Wednesday evenings March 17th and 19th and Amador High School on Tuesday and Thursday evenings March 18th and 20th. Those unable to preregister should go directly to the class of their choice on the week of March 31st. Each class is $4.00 for the quarter. For further information call 462-1615 days, or 828-6410 Monday and Wednesday evenings, or 846-2818 Tuesday and Thursday evenings.

Home of the Week

Sharp and Spotless 3 bedroom, 2 bath, located on cul-de-sac. Nice landscaping, shake roof, all electric kitchen, lovely fireplace, complete with extra large backyard with available access. Only $42,950. For further details call HARRIS REALTY, 846-5900, 6051 West Las Positas, Pleasanton.

Sales Spotlight

Pacific Coast - New R.E. Firm

The valley's newest real estate firm, PACIFIC COAST REALTORS, opened its doors with a flourish on March 2 and occupies a suite of offices at 7000 Village Parkway, Dublin.

Partners Bob Bauge, Tom Kite, Bob Piper and Hank Thornton are veteran real estate brokers with many years of experience in the highly competitive tri-valley real property markets. According to Bob Piper, "Sharing decades of experience in all types of real estate sales, appraising and financing allows PACIFIC COAST REALTORS to bring a broad understanding and highly polished professional expertise to bear upon any real property transaction."

Along with realtor associates Betty Pillow and Brenda Nicholson and secretary Helen Warren, PACIFIC COAST REALTORS has as its goal to bring "honest, efficient and responsive service to every potential buyer and seller of real estate in the valley."

Early swimming program offered

LIVERMORE — Swim season earlybirds are invited to an adult noontime swim conditioning program sponsored by the Livermore Area Recreation and Park District (LARPd).

Swimmers progress at their own speed in an unstructured program. A lifeguard will be on duty and 25 cents will be charged for each swim period.

This is a drop-in program available Monday through Friday, 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. daily.

SABER DEATH

Salvatore Nizza, 35, former Italian saber champion, was accidentally killed recently at a Turin fencing club when a saber broke and pierced his throat during a match with his best friend.

Patty's Day special on at Refectory

DUBLIN — Were St. Patty around today he'd take his repaste at the Refectory Restaurant Monday, according to manager Bob Gattis, for a corned beef and cabbage lunch, 75 cent Irish Coffees, and — again — a green beer drinking contest.

He (or she) who hoists the fastest 22 ounces of beer will win two dinners at the restaurant.

The Refectory also has announced a temporary closing for remodeling from Apr. 13, through 23.

Renovations will include the addition of a fireplace, sofas, enlarged booths, a remodeled and relocated salad bar, and the addition of abalone and cottage-fried potatoes to the menu.

A Junior Women's Club "Kidnap Luncheon" will be held on Apr. 9, to benefit the Cancer Society.

The women will kidnap local merchants between 3 and 6 p.m., bringing them to the Refectory for "ransome" donations.

Livermore BPW to hear lab rep

The dinner meeting of the Livermore Business and Professional Women's Club will be held at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Emperor's Garden, Livermore.

Guest speaker will be James Swingle of the Livermore Radiation Laboratory. He holds a master's degree in engineering from the University of Florida. Swingle will show films and speak on the resident laser program.

Interested persons are invited, but reservations must be made in advance with Mrs. O'Malia, 447-0386, by 10 a.m. Monday.

Victoria de Bardeleben, World Affairs Chairman, is in charge of arrangements.

Huge ruby shown at WC jewelry

The largest Chatham Created Ruby on earth was shown as part of the $100,000 private Chatham jewelry and gem collection on Friday and Saturday at Vern Jimenez Jewelry, 1438 Broadway Plaza in Walnut Creek.

The huge 645 carat uncut crystal has been valued at over $28,800. It was specially grown to herald Chatham Created Ruby, the newest gem developed by Carroll F. Chatham, long accepted as the nation's leading authority on crystal growth. Chatham created the emerald over 30 years ago after graduating from The California Institute of Technology. This gem, which sells for one fifth the price of rare natural emeralds, has achieved world wide public acceptance.

Robert Schott, special representative for Chatham Created Gems, will be at Vern Jimenez Jewelers with the Chatham collection. He will answer questions about the new Chatham Created Ruby as well as Chatham Created Emeralds and explain why these jewels are not imitations but are acknowledged by leading international gemologists as the world's finest man grown gems.

Visitors to Vern Jimenez Jewelry were able to view the famed Chatham collection and personally inspect rare exhibition crystals of both Chatham Created Gems.

Tax collector warns on payment deadline

Alameda County Tax Collector Frank M. Krause announced today that the second half of the current year's real estate property taxes are due and will become delinquent at 5 p.m., April 10, 1975, after which a 6 per cent delinquent penalty and $3 costs are added. Krause stated that after April 10, the second half installment payment shall not be accepted unless accompanied by the payment of the first installment due December 10, 1974, to which a 6 per cent delinquent penalty has already attached.

If your taxes are unpaid by June 30, 1975, the tax becomes prior year delinquent taxes. Krause's office is authorized to take partial payments for prior year delinquent taxes, under certain conditions, beginning July 1, 1975, at which time additional penalties are added.

Krause further commented that you can call his office in Oakland toll free as follows:

From Livermore - Pleasanton Area - 846-3277, ask for ext. 5641.

Schools slate signups for kindergarten tots

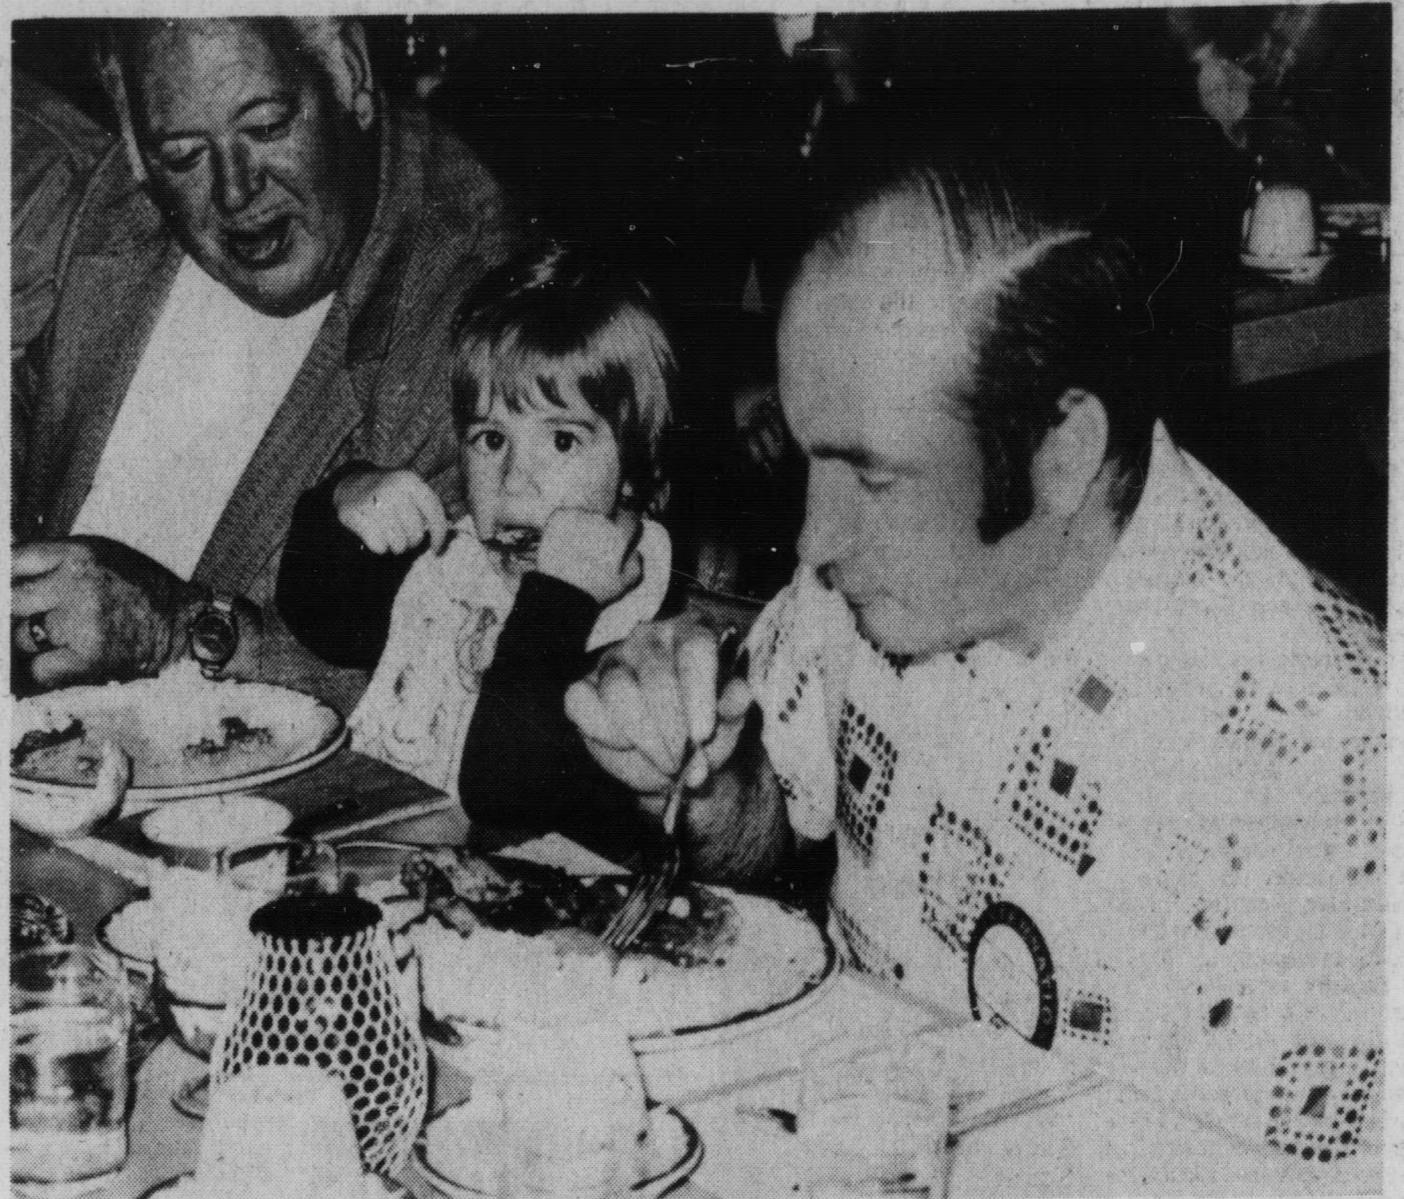

PLEASANTON — Parents of 4-year-olds are reminded that kindergarten registration will take place in public schools next month.

All seven elementary schools in the Pleasanton district will take registrations Monday, April 7.

Because state law limits enrollment to those students who will be 4 years and 9 months old on or before September 1, 1975, parents are required to bring along proof of their child's age. This may be in the form of a certified copy of a county or local birth record, baptism certificate duly-attested, a passport, or, when none of these are obtainable, an affidavit of the parent or guardian of the child.

Recent state legislation further requires that before a child may be admitted to school, he or she must have received immunization against the following diseases: diphtheria, pertussis, tetanus (usually combined in DPT inoculation); polio; and measles (the red, hard variety). Proof of these immunizations should be presented to the school by the week before fall classes begin.

Lions Club cub

Approximately 100 Lions and their daughters were in attendance at the annual Lion's Father - Daughter night at Hap's in Pleasanton recently. The daughters enjoyed an evening of fun, food and

Vets hospital names psychiatry chief

LIVERMORE — Dr. Don E. Farley, a Spokane native, has been named chief of psychiatry service at the Veterans Administration Hospital here.

According to an announcement from Vets Hospital director John J. Lee,

Dr. Farley comes to the Livermore facility from Richland, Wash., where he was assistant to the director at Mid-Columbia Mental Health Center. Before working in Richland, he was medical director of the Panhandle Mental Health Center in Scottsbluff, Neb., 1970-73.

The psychologist was born and raised in Spokane, Wash. He attended Gonzaga University there from 1949 to 1951 and served in the Air Force from 1951 to 1953.

After his military service was over, he received his bachelor of science degree at the University of Washington. Since then, he has had experience in teaching and earned his doctoral degree in psychology from the University of Hawaii in 1960.

PRESTIGE HOMES

Three area real estate brokers have joined experience to found PRESTIGE HOMES, a real estate firm newly located at 7000 Village Parkway, Dublin. Jack Bresee, Don Jones and Ron Santos (above) have pooled their considerable talents in the field of real estate and look forward to continued service to area residents under their new banner. All three brokers are Pleasanton residents and with their families are active in community activities and sports.

Pleasanton man wins promotion

The appointment of Robert Hitchcock as district sales supervisor for the Norton Company's Safety Products Division has been announced by the firm's headquarters office in Worcester, Mass. Hitchcock makes his home in Pleasanton with his wife and four children.

No garbage site on Vineyard Ave.

Alameda County Bureau
HAYWARD — After many hearings and a generally unfavorable response from Alameda County and neighboring property owners, Pleasanton Garbage Service has abandoned plans for a transfer station on its Vineyard Avenue property.

The company is now seeking to locate that transfer station on a 7.5-acre parcel on Busch Road in Pleasanton and will present the plans to the Alameda County Planning Commission Monday.

The property is within the city limits but must be compatible with the county's solid waste management plan and thus, will be reviewed by the planning commission.

A dump has been operated on the Vineyard Avenue property for at least 15 years. Pleasanton Garbage Service took over the operation in 1969.

Because capacity on that site is rapidly running out, the garbage firm has been trying for the past several years to gain approval for a transfer station on that property. Local garbage would be taken to the site of the transfer station, put in closed trucks and taken to the Vasco Road dump site in Livermore.

The property the company is now seeking approval for is located on Busch Road and is well within the Kaiser Sand and Gravel property, removed from any residential dwellings.

Bill Hirst, attorney for the garbage firm, believes the large transfer trucks will be able to leave the site using El Charro Road for direct access to Interstate 580. One of the major objections to the Vineyard Avenue site was the amount of traffic that would be generated on public streets.

The planning commission will also discuss the housing element obstacles, goals and objectives as recommended by the Housing Committee of the Human Relations Commission.

The planning commission meets at 1:30 p.m. Monday in the Alameda County Public Works Building, 399 Elmhurst St.

Sonoma school

Mrs. Doris Nielsen of Pleasanton was chosen by the Discovery Groups of Pleasanton and Livermore to be their guest of honor at their Spring 65th Birthday Fashion Show held at Sonoma School recently. The girls modeled the ceremonial gowns and clothes they made. Shown with Mrs. Nielsen are Lisa Root (center), Susan Jackson, Julie Hauschildt, Nancy Olson and Robin Lee.

Teens take woes to VCSD parks

Concerned teenagers once more made an appearance at the Citizen's Advisory Committee (CAC) to the Valley Community Services District Parks and Recreation Committee meeting and reiterated their plea of two weeks ago.

This past Tuesday, however, the youngsters had some support in the person of Richard Grove of Hotline, who discussed the problems of teenagers in the Valley and what might be done to alleviate those problems.

The teenagers have requested an extension of hours at Shannon Community Center as well as more concerts, dances and trips in the near future. In the long run, they would like to see a separate Teen Center under the supervision of Hotline.

Specifically, the group asked that the present teen center at Shannon be switched with the downstairs meeting room, which is larger. They feel if the facility is larger, there are more pool and pingpong tables and the center is open later, that more teenagers will use the building.

And since they feel that much of the drug use in the Valley is related to boredom, more teens in the youth center would mean fewer smoking pot.

VCSD has applied to the county for funds for a teen counselor but they have heard no word as yet. That counselor also might be employed to run a day drop-in center for women in the district.

Old plant may get new ties

The Regional Water Quality Control Board staff is recommending the City of Pleasanton be allowed some additional sewer connections at its antiquated Sunol Boulevard sewer treatment plant.

City officials will appear before the RWQCB Tuesday to make a request for 541 additional connections.

In the last three and a half years, connections have been allowed at that plant for only a 12-month period and then, only on a very limited basis.

After spending more than $350,000 to correct the odor and run-off problems at that treatment facility, the city is now asking for an amendment to the cease and desist order to allow the additional 541 connections.

The report, prepared for the regional board's consideration on Tuesday, notes the improvements the city has made to the plant and states, "There was a significant reduction in the percentage of people reporting unpleasant odors." The report does add, however, "Although the odors are reduced, many people are concerned that odors will reoccur this summer."

Because there is no way of determining whether the odors will indeed reoccur during the hot weather months or whether the additional connections will have an effect on the odor, the staff is recommending only a few hundred connections be allowed at this time and a hearing on more connections be scheduled later this year.

Staff does, however, state, in their opinion, "the risk of odor nuisance in the summer is very minimal if only a few hundred connections are permitted. Moreover," the report continues, "The city will be able to add additional odor control in the event that odor nuisance does develop."

The regional water board hearing will be held at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday in the State Building Assembly Room, 1111 Jackson St. in Oakland.

March 17, adult date at Amador

The brochures for the Amador Valley Adult Education's spring quarter are now being prepared and pre-registration will begin Monday, March 17.

Pre-registration is scheduled from 7 to 9 p.m. on Mondays and Wednesdays at Dublin High School and Tuesdays and Thursdays at Amador Valley High School. Tuition fee is $4 per person, per class. No charge is made for high school credit classes to those who do not have a diploma or for those enrolling in citizenship and English for the Foreign Born.

Among the new classes being added for the spring quarter are three in family living, two in crafts and five in general interest.

Training for Effective Parents, College Admission Planning and Self Image and You are among the new general interest classes.

Stained Glass and Leather Craft are the new crafts classes while Basic Education for the Handicapped, Parent-Child Observation and Consumer Homemaking are the family living newcomers.

Another class is not only unique but will be offered at the Federal Youth Center. Administrators at the FYC had to obtain permission from Washington, D.C. in order to insure Amador offering it. The class will be open to FYC residents as well as those living in the surrounding community.

A course on care and prevention of athletic injuries, particularly suited to Pop Warner and Little League coaches, will be offered at Dublin High School on Monday evenings.

Classes get underway the week of March 31.

For further information on adult education, brochures will soon be available or the office at Foothill High School may be called during the day (462-1615).

Livermore sets class in fashion

LIVERMORE — Learn all about fashion in a new class at the Livermore Adult Evening School.

For just four dollars' registration fee, Valley residents may enroll in "Fashion and Fabric Awareness," which will begin March 31 and continue through June.

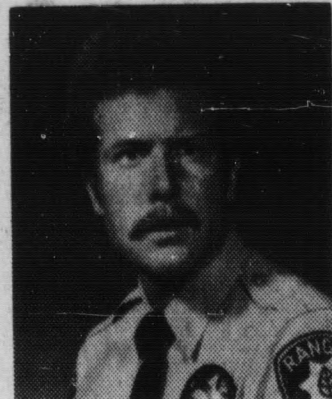

Teaching the course will be Mrs. Loni Shriber, who holds a bachelor's degree in fashion merchandising and business administration from Utah State University in Logan, Utah. She has worked in Bon Marche, ZCMI (Salt Lake City), Ceemies Boutique and Joseph Magnin (San Francisco) where she worked in sportswear, junior dresses and as an assistant buyer in handbags.

The teacher will discuss style changes, current season trends, wardrobe planning, variety of fabrics, color and suitability to certain styles. The process of retail buying and display will be discussed as an aid to those interested in retail employment.

The class meets Wednesdays, 7 to 10 p.m. beginning April 2 at Livermore High. Registration for Fashion and Fabric Awareness and the long list of other classes offered by the evening division begins Monday, March 24, and continue all week at the Adult Education office, 3044 East Ave., 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Information is available at 447-6671.

Heroism awards earned by two EBRPD rangers

SUNOL — Rescue efforts at the scene of a violent automobile accident here last April have led to heroism awards for two East Bay Regional Park District rangers. Gary Martin of Albany, public safety officer, and Scott Parsons of Orinda, reserve public safety officer, will receive the Red Cross Certificate of Merit at the April 10 meeting of the Diabo Chapter of the Red Cross in Concord. The certificate will go to the two men for their "selfless and humane action" in "sustaining two, and saving the lives of four" victims of the crash on Calaveras Road just outside Sunol Valley Regional Wilderness in April, 1974.

The certificate is the highest award given by the American National Red Cross to a person who sustains life by using skills and knowledge learned in a volunteer training program offered by the Red Cross in first aid, small craft or water safety. Martin, 33, is a graduate of Hayward High School and Chabot College. He has studied police tactics and juvenile procedures in Sweden and served three years as a police reservist in the City of Hayward before joining EBRPD.

Parsons, 21, a Berkeley native, holds a degree in police science from Diablo Valley College and is pursuing a degree in criminal justice through a Sacramento State University course taught at DVC.

HIGHWAY DEATHS

According to the Insurance Information Institute, highway deaths totaled 4,000 for January, a three per cent drop from the 1972 level.

Hi, I'm Connie —fly me!

Mike Zampa

Sometime this summer one of Dennis Burger's pitchers is going to hang one up there "too fat." A batter will jump on the ball and send it over a fence, far into the clouds.

Burger will look up, bite his lip perhaps, and groan for an instant. But as the ball soars to the heavens, he'll think to himself that indeed, the skies are friendly.

After all, they put Burger's team on the field. Dennis is the baseball coach for Granada High School. He will join Kevin Drake, coach at rival Livermore, in coaching the area's infant Connie Mack League team this summer.

The league is a top-quality summer replacement for prep-age ball players. It may be better than American Legion baseball, Burger speculates.

Because existing summer programs can't accommodate all of the players in Livermore, Dublin and Pleasanton, the two coaches agreed to found a team in Livermore beginning this summer.

It means a $1,300 investment up front for uniforms, baseballs and other accoutrements of the ball yard. That makes Burger wince a bit. One local businessman pondered sponsorship for the fledgling team, but then you know what the economy's like these days.

Burger nearly gave up the dream until a secretary in Granada's social studies department (where Burger teaches) forwarded a suggestion. Her husband is in the employ of World Airways, and perhaps, she guessed, the company might fly out a few hundred bucks for a baseball club.

Burger contacted WA president Edward Dailey in Oakland, and came out with a check for the full amount necessary. The team begins practice the day high school season ends, and will play its first ball game before June.

"World Airways has been great," smiles Burger, who out of propriety may promise never to leer at another "Fly Me," commercial.

"After the one local man turned me down I thought I'd give it one more try. But if I couldn't get them to help — his mind wanders to a picture of rag tag baseball players throwing a friction-taped sphere around a rutted infield, being laughed at by the entire national membership of Connie Mack baseball.

Despite the windfall it will be rough going this first summer in the Connie Mack league, Burger warns. While the other teams in the Greater East Bay League have concluded winter practice, Burger is still concerned with stitching the right name on the blouses, and finding sufficient funds to pay for all of those blind umpires. "It's going to be tight, but I think we can make it," he says.

Livermore's entry will draw on players from Livermore and Granada highs, Amador Valley and perhaps Dublin. There could be a recruiting hassle there because Dublin rests in overlapping ballwicks. Danville has started a team and will likewise contact Dublin players.

Already 13 have confirmed membership with the World Airways team. It will play a 21-game league schedule with clubs from San Leandro, Castro Valley, Pleasant Hill, Berkeley, El Cerrito and Danville. As with most summer baseball programs, there are regional and state playoffs. Castro Valley's entry won a semi-pro championship in Cincinnati last summer.

"I'm convinced Connie Mack offers the best competition around here," says Burger. "It's superior in terms of the opposition we'll play, and the fields we'll play on."

Six members of the San Leandro team currently play at Chabot College, Burger points out. Two were signed by the New York Mets recently. "It's getting to be a status symbol just to be asked to play on San Leandro's team," he says. That club played 60 games last summer. Castro Valley's team played 100 games.

Professional scouts are convinced of the Connie Mack's caliber of play, according to Burger. They are more interested in those contests, than any other summer game involving high schoolers, he says.

With so much emphasis on the seamier side of baseball, the front office haggling over finances, there is still much to settle on the field. At least five more bodies are needed at Granada High.

Right now he is labelling the club "representative," a euphemism in baseball that covers anything from first division finisher to a team that fields the full compliment of merely nine players day after day.

Three players from Drake's Livermore High team are committed, Robin Wilkerson, Rich Palmer and Wayne Perry. Perry and Wilkerson played with Castro Valley last summer in the Cincinnati series.

From Granada, Pitchers Steve Stone and Bob Stoddard have enrolled. Another pitcher is Mark Larson of Amador. The Dons' All-East Bay shortstop of a year ago, Dave Straface, may sign up. He has graduated from school, but falls safely inside the 18-year old limit.

That nucleus makes Burger's "representative," estimate an understatement. It could be seasons however, before Livermore challenges the established Connie Mack powers.

But with a couple of strong pitchers, plus two people with experience in the league, things could blossom early. At least transportation won't be a problem if Burger's club reaches the state playoffs. It can fly World Airways.

Sun shines on A V victory

For the first time this season the sun shined on an Amador High baseball game, and so did Rob Wicks as the Dons routed John F. Kennedy of Fremont 5-0, Friday in Pleasanton.

Wicks went all the way on the mound for Amador, allowing only two basehits. The talented sophomore struck out seven while allowing only one base on balls.

A triple by Joe Roman and a single by Ed Jurisan were the only safeties allowed by the hard throwing Wicks.

The win was the Dons first of the young campaign, compared to three losses.

Hitting, which was the Dons greatest weakness in their previous three setbacks, was good as the Dons touched three Titan pitchers for seven hits.

Brett Boldrini highlighted the Dons offensive fireworks with a triple which produced two Amador runs in the fifth inning.

Mike Johnson, who hit the ball well in the Dons previous two outings, collected a pair of basehits and scored both times he connected for singles.

The lanky junior hit the ball hard on a third occasion only to have it caught.

Greg Bellinger, Amador's

shortstop, collected a pair of singles on the afternoon as well as scoring a run. The senior also had a flawless day defensively.

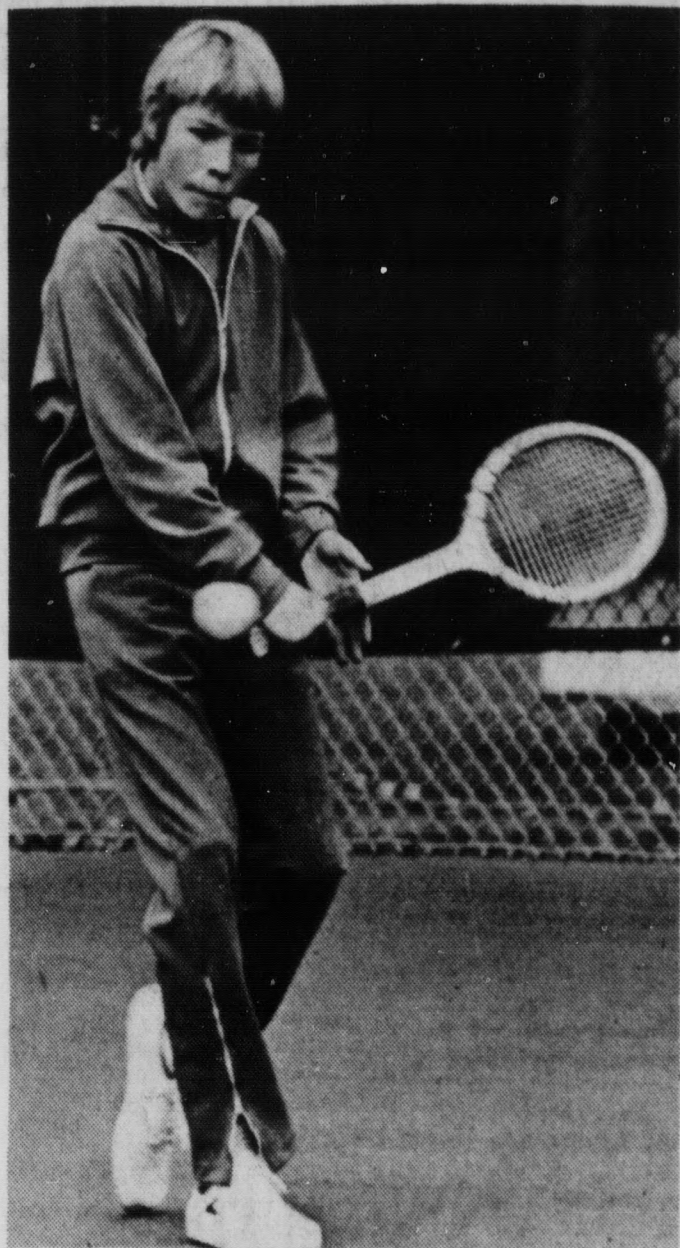

The Dons jumped out in front in the bottom half of the first, when they scored a pair of runs.

With one down Bellinger singled. Johnson moved Bellinger to third with a single to right. Jeff Terry brought Bellinger in when he bounced a ball to JFK first sacker Steve Bender who threw the ball past catcher Mike Freitas.

Mark Bevilacqua and Dave Krikorian worked Titan hurler Robin Vaughn for two consecutive walks, enabling Johnson to score the final run of the inning.

That was all the offense Amador needed as Wicks who repeatedly got in front of the bat and made them hit his pitch, set the Titans down with ease, to earn his first victory on the varsity level.

Anger wins as CCC net opens

Despite the wind and cold at Castletown Country Club, Matt Anger advanced to the quarter-finals of the boys-12 group yesterday in the 1975 Castletown Junior Invitational Tennis Championships.

Anger was the only local player to win a match as Livermore's Steve Williford lost in the first round of the boys-14. Anger, third-seeded, had a first round bye and then dumped Alistair Lumsden of Palo Alto, 6-2, 6-3.

The Pleasanton resident will face either Bruce Ramirez of Cupertino or Fred Santos-Coy of Walick in the quarter finals today.

Williford was eliminated from the competition via a 6-1, 6-4 loss at the hands of Paul Manley of Palo Alto in boys-14.

Greg Holmes, seeded second in the boys-12 was given a first round bye and will match shots with Jenno Morson of San Francisco today.

In other boys-12 play, Livermore's Troy Larson was granted a first round bye and will face Alexander Winslow of San Francisco this afternoon.

Two local girls, Jenny Anger and Mindy Gottesman, both of Pleasanton will swing into action today.

Gottesman will tangle with Sherree Chin of Oakland in girls-14.

Miss Anger, after a first round bye, will battle Stephanie Savides of Mt. Pleasant in girls-12 match scheduled for late this afternoon.

After today's preliminary rounds, next weekend Castletown will host the semi-finals and finals as it completes its first ever tournament.

Sessions simply wins four

Rich Sessions day at the track is very simple.

All he does is go out, warm up, and win four events.

Friday in Livermore against American High Sessions won the 440 yard dash in a fleet 51.8, the 220 in 23.7 and anchored both the victorious 440 and mile relay teams.

With Sessions' heroics the Livermore track team demolished American 83-53. The junior varsity was just as awesome, running up a 80-56 final score.

Bret Hazen continues to turn in fine mile times as he clocked an impressive 4:36.5 for the four lap event.

Boyd Tarin breezed to a 10:09.1 mark in the two mile to lead a Livermore sweep of the grueling event.

Bill Branett turned in a fine performance as he captured both hurdle events.

The Livermore senior was clocked in 15.5 in the 120 high hurdles and 41.1 in the 330 low hurdles.

While the Pokes were winning going away the Amador Dons ran into a tough Castletown track team and suffered a 68-59 loss Friday in Pleasanton.

Castlemont's Coart Owens went 6-6 to easily take the high jump competition. The Castlemont star attempted 6-8, which would have set an Eastbay high for the season, but failed three times.

Maurice Glass, still nursing a severe hamstring pull he suffered early last season, breezed to a 10.5 clocking in the 100 yard dash.

The senior sensation, still heavily taped is being brought along slow in hopes he will regain the form that enabled him to clock a 9.6 time a year ago.

Mike Mayer won both hurdle events for the Dons as he lead Amador sweeps in both those events.

Rick Pruneau, who clocked a fine 2:04.880 against McClymonds turned in a 4:43.0 time in the mile run, to easily outclass the field.

The lanky junior also placed second in the two mile, completing a rugged double on the day.

Bruce Bynum and Roger Brothers teamed up to dominate the weight events for the Dons.

Bynum won the shot-put with a heave of 46-2, while Brothers twirled the discus 132-6 to win that competition.

Keith Siebert won the pole vault with a leap of 10-6, while Mike Croteau took top honors in the 220 with a 23.6 clocking.

Mobile Mats divide

It would be rather futile to try to convince the Granada High baseball team of the rigors of the National Basketball Association's schedule. For while the pro cagers often play three games in as many nights, the Matadors played two games in one day in two different towns.

Rain washed out Friday's contest with Lower Lake, so it was made up yesterday with Granada losing 5-4. Immediately, the Mats packed up and moved on to Kelseyville where they smashed the hosts 10-0.

In the opener, Granada led 4-1 behind the pitching of Bob Stoddard, until the roof fell in on reliever Ken Staton. Stoddard gave up just two hits while on the hill but was removed by coach Dennis Burger after five frames because of the low temperatures.

The Mats got all their runs in the second inning.

Consecutive singles by Vance Rushing, Bill Jespersen and Stoddard loaded the bases and Pat Gosney walked to force in the first run. Then after an intervening out, Dave Spencer singled, Dave O'Brien walked and Steve Stone swatted a sacrifice fly to chase home a run apiece.

Gary Fenner got the win for the Lakers.

At Kelseyville, Stone took the mound and turned in another fine early-season performance. Stone gave up a hit to the hosts lead-off batter then no-hit them the rest of the way limiting them to two walks while he fanned 13.

Against Castro Valley earlier in the still-young season, Stone hurled 10 walk-less innings.

The Mats got their runs in bunches in the nightcap too, picking up five in each of the third and seventh innings.

Spencer led off the third with a double and scored when O'Brien rapped a single. A Stone single and a walk to Stoddard loaded the bases with one out.

Jespersen then grounded out but a run scored. Tim Duke came up with a two-run single, followed by a Mike Shay run-scoring that brought the score halfway to its final count.

In the seventh, Stoddard singled, Leahue and Rushing walked to load the bases before Kelly Conrad walked scoring the Mats sixth run.

Firstbaseman Nico Snel then slapped a run-scoring single followed by a two-run Ed Keach double and a Staton fielder's choice that wrapped up the scoring.

Goalie clinic

A soccer goaltender's clinic will be held today at 9 a.m. at Junction Avenue School.

Eddie Meyer, Chico State's starting goalie, is putting on the clinic with the help of Chabot College netminder Steve Hector, a former Amador High player.

An Editorial

The great barrier that divides a city

If an industrial firm of attractive dimensions were to propose a sizeable investment in your town, stating only that "we will build here providing you let us put up a solid wall, four miles long, through the heart of your city," that investor would be told what he could do with his plant, and his wall.

Isn't it about time Pleasanton mounted a similar response to the people who built Interstate 680 splitting this city from end to the other, without so much as a window or a door in that barrier? The picture of Pleasanton begging this and that high agency for "some consideration" in the matter of an interchange, an overpass or whatever to bridge Route 680 has taken on ludicrous dimensions in this newspaper's view. We should stop begging, and start suing.

It has been over a decade since the state highway people won "most favorable co-operation" from throughout this community on the choice of a route for "the second most important north-south freeway in all of California." They had to have passage through this valley. Pleasanton co-operated, despite some misgivings. Given the assurance of interchanges and cross-town access, the route which extends due south from Dublin looked like our best bet; it was most certainly the state's cheapest path.

Ten years later, we are still waiting for the highway people to keep their end of the bargain. But from 580 to Bernal, a travel distance of four miles, there is not one break in that freeway, not one interchange or overpass. There is not even a pedestrian bridge to allow people to walk from one side to the other.

"There is no question that it is costing the City of Pleasanton a great deal of tax money in longer police patrols, and fire engines that can't get from one side of the town to the other without going a long way around," admits Chief Walter McCloud, who heads up the city's fire and police departments.

There is a more immediate cost which might be translated in lives, rather than dollars. "We know that young people crawl through breaks in the chain-link fence and run across the freeway to get from Foothill to Val Vista. This is especially true in the summer, when they want to reach the Youth Sports Park on Hopyard Road, or the aquatic center on Black Avenue," McCloud states. The day that one or more local youngsters are crushed in that mad dash across Interstate 680 is the day the community will be up in arms, and the state and federal people will get the message.

We should not wait. There must be positive, persistent action right now to force the State Highway Commission to provide access over, or under, that freeway. Since that high agency responds better to "dollar factors" than to any threat to life or limb, Pleasanton could produce the added cost in school bus miles travelled in order to circumvent that wall; there are the police and fire costs too, and there is even a sizeable item in lost city sales taxes for those 2000 Foothill families who have always found Dublin's shops and services on the north side of Interstate 580 much more reachable than anything within Pleasanton, but on the far side of 680.

No matter how it is viewed, Route 680 is an intolerable invasion of one city's rights, and a barrier that must be breached not in accordance with "available federal dollars and state priorities," but rather in terms of one community's right to survive, without having to crawl on our bellies across that great divide.

Consumer Fraud Dept. is designed to serve you

Alameda County's Consumer Fraud Division is on the move. The shift to a new location — 125 12th Street in Oakland — reflects an even more important trend that places consumer fraud in the forefront of public concern, and governmental action.

The idea of allowing the typical consumer to "go right to the top" in pursuit of retail justice, or perhaps to blow the whistle on an offending vendor, is relatively new. It is also well overdue. The suede shoe, phony asbestos shingle salesman and quick-buck circus promoter have too long profited from their shady and even illegal promotions. Now John Q. Citizen can help curb these con artists, by dialing 846-3277 from anywhere in the valley, and asking for the District Attorney's Consumer Fraud Division.

It should prove a profitable experience for all of us, including the legitimate businessman who can never match the clever pitch of the cut-rate competitor.

Write your legislator

The last time you reacted with anger, dismay, outrage, or even with pleasure to a public issue or a specific piece of legislation, did you write to your legislator? If you didn't, you're not fully participating in the American governmental process.

Well-written letters are the best way to help your legislators really represent you.

To write an effective letter: — Confine the scope of your letter to one issue. If unrelated subjects, problems, or other bills are combined in a single letter, your main concern may be lost in the confusion when your letter is filed.

— Refer to legislation by bill number or description. To be sure of your facts, it is often helpful to get a copy of a bill. Copies may be obtained free by writing to: Legislative Bill Room, State Capitol, Sacramento, 95814. Always ask for the "latest amended version."

— Organize your thoughts. It is often a good idea to make an outline so that you won't leave anything out. Keep facts and opinions clearly separated.

— Keep your letter short, clear, and to the point. In general, your letter will be most persuasive if your arguments are easy to understand and if you don't ramble and repeat yourself.

— Keep calm. A serious, concerned letter is more persuasive than a threatening or hysterical one. Try to avoid sarcasm.

— Express your reasons fully. Detailing your reasons is essential if you hope to influence or persuade.

— Include your name and address. Most legislators answer every thoughtful letter. Some even keep interested constituents informed of the progress of the bill.

— Write to your own representative. In general, legislators pay the most attention to mail from their own districts. However, it is also appropriate to write to the members of a committee that is hearing a specific bill or that is responsible for a particular area of legislation.

— Write to praise as well as to complain. But don't correspond only with those legislators who philosophies seem amenable to yours. For the system to work, the other side needs to hear from the other side reasonably.

— The best letter you can write won't necessarily change legislators' minds, but it can encourage them to study the issues further, and it can give a nudge to undecided votes.

— Most legislators are reasonable people who want to represent their constituents well. Constituent letters provide the most effective way of helping them to do that.

— The League of Women Voters of the Livermore-Amador Valley 455-0800.

Photo shop

Editor, The Times:

Why is it that whenever there is a photo contest in Livermore, you run pictures and free publicity for Ken's Cameras, but when The Photo Shop in Dublin holds a contest, not one thing is mentioned?

The contest held by The Photo Shop March 3 had over 150 entries and not a word about it.

The cooperation that the owners, Ray and Anne Hunt show toward the people of this community is outstanding, and I feel that they should be recognized for this.

Steve Heath

Don't kill the trees

To The Editor:

One year ago my brother Georgie and I sent $15 each for the Pleasanton trees, and we both look back when we played games like which tree is his and which is mine. But by now our tree is probably gone. The kids that hurt the plants and trees probably don't know that they have feeling too! and it just does not hurt the plants and the trees. It hurts the people who planted them and who paid for them as my brother and I did.

Trees are made by God only, for are enjoyment, not for us to have fun wrecking them.

Tiffany Withers
Pleasanton
Age 9

Sound and Fury
Walt Hecox

Friday afternoon and the sun has returned to the valley but shining on wintertime air turned frigid by snows which linger on the low hills, blanketing half the crown of Flag Mountain and Maguire Peaks, pretty outcroppings but also puny in the alpine world.

Over in Dublin the Chamber of Commerce is busy preparing for the Great Beer Drinking Contest, the fourth annual such affair in which the first fifteen brave souls to call the Chamber offices and volunteer will compete for a variety of prizes.

Nine are already prepared to compete for the guzzling title of the village and there would be ten were it not for one small detail.

The tenth would have been this old man and I can guarantee there would have been no real contest. There was a time when a lad named Otto Schouchow (pronounced Shock-O) and I held undisputed beer drinking title of all Camp Pendleton, San Onofre and most of Camp Elliott.

Believe me, we trained hard to win our titles but the routine, while rigorous, was far from painful.

Daily we marched down to the Non-Commissioned Officers Club adjoining the Post Exchange and purchased a case of beer each. (We paid $2.40 a case and won the money from less skillful poker players in the barracks.)

We warmed up carrying the beer on our shoulders to the barracks where we sat on the steps and chatted (we called them bull sessions in those halcyon days) and sipped. Taps came and went but we were on detached duty and no one cared a hell of a lot where we were as long as we showed up for sick bay duty once a week.

About 11 p.m. we had each finished our case and were ready for a good — if sometimes interrupted — night's sleep.

Good training for beer drinkers, you must admit, though we scarcely extended ourselves. Otto was an English teacher at Carlton College in Minnesota as a civilian, a Phi Beta Kappa with a sense of humor and a stubbornly confirmed enlisted man.

With a background like that you can be sure that, despite a sad lack of training, I could take care of the amateur competition Dublin would offer.

I have had maybe six bottles of beer during the past year, the left over from the bottle I use when making omlets, excluding my stays in Mexico.

One thing the land south of the border far surpasses the United States of America at is the manufacture of malt brew. Bohemia is my favorite, the greatest brew in the world, but there are those who swear by Carta Blanca and a host of others. All of them are out of the class of the puny drink we call beer.

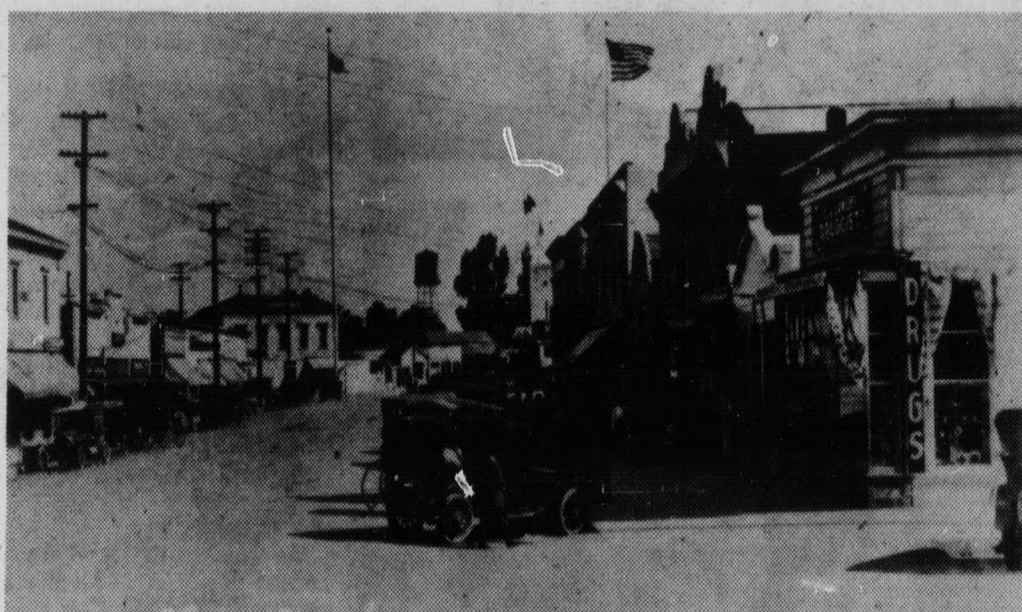

A bottle of Guinness Stout goes down well with a Dutch lunch at the Nut Tree, nutty brown liquid which is meant to mix with cold liverwurst and roast beef well smeared with uncreamed and nippy horseradish.

Unfortunately, I must withhold my well tested ability and experience from the Great Beer Drinking Contest. March 17 is not only St. Paddy's Day, it is the anniversary of my trip to the little brown church at Sunol and my marriage.

A man should hardly enter a beer drinking contest on his anniversary, now should he? Particularly not if he is still convinced the other half of the bargain is the most wonderful, charming and loveliest woman in the world.

A commentary on spring

Every writer who has ever been a sportswriter gets a certain tingle as spring approaches.

He knows, as surely as cheerleaders will scream "We've got spirit, how about YOU?", that baseball is just around the corner.

It isn't necessary for the writer to even cover baseball any more, for he can still remember the crowded, noisy gyms; the pressure to get the play-by-play; and the screaming of the coach at the winter basketball games.

Basketball is indeed a city game, an indoor game. The athletes seem to bounce around in the confines of a court that has somehow become too small for their elongated bodies.

But with spring, and green grass, he knows that baseball is not far behind.

Sure, the stories come in from Arizona and Florida and far off places, but the real story is right here, right now, where Little Leaguers start begging cutely for new gloves or new spikes or whatever is in fashion.

Although the sound of bat on ball has been altered by the introduction of aluminum bats, the clean white lines and lush cool grass are still the same.

The eternal mindless chatter, the pacifying ritual of infield practice and the atmosphere of calm, unhurried grace, played out in seemingly limitless grounds smooth out the worries of everyday life.

And there perhaps is the key to baseball's charm. In a world less and less open to the call of relaxation or the joys of things that have no time limit, baseball stands apart.

While the game goes on, no one has anywhere to go. It is played out at its own stately (yes, sometimes dull) pace and it cannot, will not, be hurried. The reporter is not buffeted by mindless screams from adolescent girls who don't know a fast break from a fast ball, and editors cannot demand that he hurry up with the story — the story must wait for the game, and baseball hurries for no one.

The atmosphere is always pleasant in spring baseball. There are hopes that the youngster will come around, that the hitters will be better, that the team will be fundamentally sound.

These, too, are the stuff of ritual, the stuff of return, the stuff of peace.

And old men have a place in baseball denied them in other sports. Baseball's grace is not the grace of youth but of experience, confidence, serenity.

Basketball demands sweat, football demands blood — baseball demands time. The game does not yield its secrets easily; the old men have much to teach the young even though, as always, they don't listen.

But such reflections on life are impossible in a gym inhabited by seemingly demented high school students. Baseball, by the way, is not the World Series, where corporation presidents and spotlight-loving celebrities scream for NBC; it is the high school game with 15 people watching. It is the pickup softball game in Golden Gate Park.

It is the ritual of going back, returning to a simpler time and place where the clock was not God and the pace was made for man and not machines.

With spring, old sportswriters, young children and all those ever touched by the magic of a game surely past its prime (but always in season), know that baseball is back in town.

And hokey as it is, it's always nice to welcome her again.

Hotline to move locale

LIVERMORE — Connection, the Valley's 24-hour confidential hotline, will move its offices Thursday but the telephone — 443-2123 — 443-2123 — will stay the same.

Phone service Thursday will be temporarily interrupted while the telephones are being installed at the new location.

Due to the confidential nature of the hotline, which also functions as a community telephone service, the new address will not be publicized.

Anyone wishing to volunteer their services may contact Connection at P.O. Box 332, Livermore, or by calling the Line directly.

This June, Connection will have served the Valley for five years. Volunteer listeners have handled all types of calls, ranging from talk to referrals to lonely and depressed to crisis and suicide.

So I will have to leave the beer drinking to less fortunate laddies while I celebrate a holy day in my life.

Of course it is incumbent on a retired champion to attend an event of such great importance and social significance. I have already made my reservations but will exercise my great willpower and refrain from taking an active part in the competition.

There is all the action a man might want in Dublin these days. The Spring Festival was just a babe in arms when I arrived in this green valley. It is almost a tradition now, occupying most of the month of March and extending from San Ramon National Golf Courses green fairways to the shores of Interstate 580.

Over at San Ramon one of the climaxing events of the festival will be the Junior Golf Tournament, sponsored this year by the San Ramon Men's Golf Club rather than the Chamber of Commerce. There are classes for kids ranging in age from nine to 19 years old. The nine year olds will play nine holes only. Those in the 10 — 12, 13 — 14, and 15 — 17 brackets will play the full eighteen.

There will be hot dogs and soft drinks served on the course for contestants, trophies for all age groups and the $4.00 entry fee includes the green fee.

Rod is the man to contact at the pro shop in the golf course.

The Chamber was once the sponsor of the golf tournament but it has moved on the bigger and more important events.

Not that the junior golfers are not important. Some of the finest stick swinging youngsters in this part of California will be competing on the San Ramon fairways March 27.

But can anything really compete with a green beer drinking contest on St. Paddy's Day? A golf tournament? Perhaps a wrist wrestling tournament? A pie eating contest? I'm not sure.

But a lad's third wedding anniversary? Of that I am sure, my friends. That is a horse of quite a different color.

It was like attending the 20th reunion of your high school graduation class. Going back for the very first time. Wondering what it would be like, if you would be welcome.

Not since the days of "the great state college battle" had I visited the state capitol building. We commuted then, once a month, sometimes even once a week. Carrying the valley's fight to Sacramento, trying to convince that legislative powerhouse that enabling legislation should be passed to allow financing for the first state college campus in California in over 20 years, and then — in a later, livelier skirmish — that we had the best sites for that academic plume.

For something over two years we carried on that campaign. It had ended, finally, first in unbelievable victory for a 300-acre spread on Pleasanton's north side, and then in bitter defeat as Hayward's Democratic machine convinced Governor Brown to re-open the hearings once more, change the ground rules, make that rocky, wind-blown hill in Hayward a cinch to win that coveted campus.

Assemblyman Carlos Bee had been in the vanguard of that fight, first as our hero, then later as a son of Hayward who could not withstand the political pressure. Now Carlos was gone. A man called Brown still sat in the governor's chair, although from a new generation. The configuration and the designation for the South County's assembly district had been changed also, and it was to help install S. Floyd Mori as the representative from the 15th Assembly District that we made that journey on a cloudy Thursday morning.

When the clouds began first to unleash a torrent of cold rain, and then a storm of snow that turned Route 680 into a white, wild expanse of unmarked traffic flow, our little party began to question the wisdom of that trip, or even if we would survive to complete the journey. But we pressed on now, just as we had always done, some two decades before.

It is not the same city. It is not even the same State Capitol. Much of the very old and the very tired is gone. The best of the new is pleasingly attractive; the worst of it is plastic disaster. The capitol building is less impressive somehow, lost in a backdrop of new high rises. Perhaps, I thought, it is only my respect for state government that has changed. The bitter taste of that college caper was still there.

We found the "Mori" designation on the first-floor directory. Room 6007. We were impressed. No, there are not 600 floors in the Assembly office wing. It's just one more of those bureaucratic mysteries, the first of many.

His office has a window! Mori can actually see something of the world beyond, a glimpse of the trees. I felt that was very important, somehow. The thought of a Pleasantonite boxed into a windowless office, deep in the bowels of that political labyrinth, was frightening. Assemblyman Mori would have some reason to remember this lovely valley, as he labored in his strange, new arena.

In these hallowed legislative chambers we would meet yet another reminder of the valley's political past. Tom Konovaloff was Assemblyman Bee's administrative aide some five years ago. Tom was another PT&T product from the valley who took a flier at "the clean side of politics." He was to soon grow tired of "fighting all those lobbyists," so I decided to become one, fulltime. Now he and an associate have formed a company of "governmental consultants." Proposition 9 has taken away some of the glamor, but also reduced the lobbyist's costs. "When I take a legislator and his wife out to dinner now, it's legal for him to pick up the dinner tab, but not for me. It's a little embarrassing." But Tom likes his work. We asked him to be kind to our man Mori, avoiding any expensive dining spots.

The most delighted and delightful of that large gathering was a little lady who couldn't understand a word of what was spoken by those participants. But Floyd Mori's mother just smiled, and bowed that little bow, and let the world know this was a big day for her too, in any language.

The Mori clan presented a formidable, attractive show of strength. The mother, the in-laws, and the five handsome Mori children. Two rows of seats in the lower gallery had been set aside for their use. The Mori boys looked like they would be happier on a soccer field. At the reception which followed poppa's installation, the kids set up an impromptu game of football, or whatever; almost drove the restaurant people crazy. Very typically American.

Brent Mori could be forgiven a small show of excitement. It was his 11th birthday. Also Irene Mori's. Likewise for sister-in-law Carolyn Mori. A big day all around. Reminded us of the day "Pleasanton got the college!" It figures that the Mori caper is going to have a much happier ending.

For Sunday, March 16, 1975
ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Don't jump to derogatory conclusions over a money matter you're discussing with a friend. Sleep on it to gain perspective.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
The temptation will be great to place your self-interests above those of others. Sober reflection will prove your motives are far too selfish.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
You'll feel that someone is placing too great a load on your shoulders. Time will prove that his prodding was for your mutual benefit.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
Today you'll cross paths with one for whom you have perceptible ill feeling. Your coolness will chill your companions as well.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
You are ambitious, but your zeal will be disastrous if you use poor timing and turn people off whose assistance you need.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
An old friend's urgent request will take you away from what you'd like to do. You'll help, but he'll never know of your sacrifice.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
Avoid taking a flyer with an individual you know has a poor track record. The pitch may be new, but the results will be similar.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
Harmony in a close personal relationship is important to you today. It can only be attained if you make the major concessions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
This is not a good day to overtax yourself physically. Your best work will be done with your brains.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
You're too loose with your "bread" today. Beware — your mate is about to declare a moratorium on your spending.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
It's necessary that you do certain chores around home today. No use complaining — they won't get done otherwise.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
Your tendency today is to blurt out the first thing that comes to your mind. This may not be complimentary. Be careful.

your birthday

March 16, 1975
You'll make many friends and acquaintances socially this year. This is to your benefit, but don't neglect proven pals. You can count on their faith and reliability.

Spring swim schedule pegged in Pleasanton

PLEASANTON — The Aquatic Center will open for the 1975 season on Sunday, March 22.

Recreational swimming for spring is scheduled as follows: March 22-29, 1 to 5 p.m.; April 5-May 11, weekends only, 1 to 5 p.m.; May 12-June 13, Mondays, Wednesday, Friday, 3 to 7 p.m., Tuesday and Thursday, 1:30 to 7 p.m., Saturday and Sunday, 1 to 5 p.m.

The family pass for the entire season is available for $32.50. Individual charges are 25 cents for pre-schoolers, 40 cents for students and 75 cents for adults. Swim passes allowing 15 swims for the price of 10 are also available.

Recreational swimming hours are subject to change due to weather. If less than 12 patrons are using the pool, it will be closed after swimmers are given a one-hour notice.

The spring program also includes the following safety programs: Junior and Senior Lifesaving and Water Safety Aide, during spring vacation; Water Safety Instructor and retraining during April and May.

Ladies Slim and Trim, adult lessons and Swim and Stay Fit classes begin April 14.

Children's classes begin May 12. Synchronized swimming for girls will begin March 31 at 7 p.m. at the Aquatic Center.

For additional information on water safety programs scheduled during the spring vacation, call 846-3202, extension 215. For further information on all other spring programs, please pick up an aquatic brochure at the Recreation Department, at the library or at the Aquatic Center after March 20.

Thieves hit Pleasanton residence

PLEASANTON — Police are still seeking clues to a probable daylight burglary in residential Pleasanton Monday that netted thieves more than $1,800 worth of goods.

Antonio J. Radelat, 29, returned to his Ithaca Way home early Tuesday morning to find his $1,000 stereo system and a $700 camera missing.

The thieves apparently gained entry by removing a screen from a front room window and hoisting themselves through, tracking mud throughout the house.

comprising 24 acts, competed Friday at Dublin High School. Winners from each division will move on to compete in Northern California semi-finals scheduled May 17 at Dublin High. Finals will be held in June.

Contra Costa planners set hearing on new jail project

Leshner News Bureau

Contra Costa County Planning Commissioners will take testimony Tuesday night at what may be the last public hearing on the issue of a new county jail in Martinez between now and the date it is built.

However, the commission will not be making a recommendation to the Board of Supervisors at the conclusion of the hearing which starts at 7:30 p.m. in the county administration building, Pine and Escobar Streets, Martinez.

County Planning Commission Chairman Albert Compaglia has issued a special request to persons testifying.

He asks that speakers be specific and speak to the issues in the draft environmental report.

Further, Compaglia asks speakers to cite specific chapters and pages in the EIR to which they are referring.

The commission will weigh the testimony to determine if the environmental impact report (EIR) is adequate, or if the jail will cause any unavoidable environmental or economic harm to the community if it is approved.

The draft EIR rejects on several grounds the idea of implementing alternatives to the jail as well as suggestions for a smaller facility.

County Planning Commission

Chairman Albert Compaglia has issued a special request to persons testifying. He has asked speakers to be specific and speak to the issues in the draft environmental impact report on the jail project.

Further, Compaglia has asked speakers to cite chapters and pages in the EIR to which they are referring.

The EIR notes the present facility is overcrowded, obsolete and needs replacing.

The six-story structure will also house part of the sheriff's office as well as one municipal and two Superior Court rooms. It will house 343 inmates.

Copies of the draft EIR are available in all county libraries or may be purchased from the county planning department for $2.50. That is also the price for the EIR supplement.

A request for a group of about 50 to gather at the corner of Pine and Green streets in Martinez in advance of the hearing, will be considered Tuesday morning by the Board of Supervisors.

The request from William Wainwright states the meeting is intended to gather persons to participate in the commission hearing.

Opposition to the jail is being marshalled by Louise Clark of Lafayette.

In a lengthy statement, Mrs. Clark and Florence Klingler of Martinez, criticize the costs of $2.1 million for the proposed jail and call the facility obsolete.

They suggest the county could save money by abandoning the present plans and drafting new plans conforming to newly promulgated state and federal standards.

After the hearing, the county staff will prepare responses to the testimony for inclusion in the final EIR which will be submitted to the Board of Supervisors.

ANN LANDERS

Kids caused the break

Dear Ann Landers: Your recent column about how kids can break up their parents' marriage hit very close to home.

Please reprint the enclosed column which appeared several years ago. I clipped it when my kids broke up my marriage. Now the same thing is happening to my cousin.

Thanks, Ann. — St. Louis

Dear St. Louis: Here it is: Dear Ann Landers: Will you please deal with a problem that seems to be a serious threat to many middle-age marriages these days? I refer to the sexual conduct of their teenage children.

The daughter of a close friend (age 17) was entertaining her boyfriend in her parents' bedroom several weeks ago, and I do mean "entertaining."

The folks came home unexpectedly and a scene followed. The mother was furious and made it plain that she was shocked, disappointed, and outraged.

The father took the daughter's side. He said sex was normal and natural and so long as the girl didn't get pregnant, he saw nothing wrong with it.

The argument didn't end there. They fought about this for two months, and finally the mother filed for divorce.

Another case involved my neighbor. The reverse happened.

Their 18-year-old son told his parents he wanted them to allow his 17-year-old girlfriend to move into their home.

Her parents had thrown her out for reasons he did not care to discuss. He had a nice big bedroom, so why not?

The father said, "Over my dead body."

The mother said, "Yes."

We'll take her in. It would be the "Christian" thing to do."

Three weeks later the father moved out. Last week he filed for a legal separation. There are two younger children involved. I view this as a tragedy.

Isn't life difficult enough these days without kids creating additional heartache for their parents? Please, Ann, tell your readers how this problem should be dealt with. Thank you. — Saddened By It All

Dear Sad: Early in life children learn the technique of "divide and conquer."

A teenager who could have created such a wedge between his parents is no novice. He's had years of experience.

Parents should stand united, especially on matters of morality and discipline. If they cannot agree, they should seek counseling and permit a third party to decide which way to go and then BOTH parents should go in that direction.

P.S. to St. Louis: Thank you for requesting a rerun.

For some reason that particular column seems more in tune with the times today than when it first appeared in print four years ago. Perhaps it's because families are moving more and more in that direction.

Dear Ann Landers: Who buys the wedding anniversary present? Does the wife buy one for her husband, or does the husband buy one for his wife? I've heard many conflicting answers. What is yours? — In Doubt In Tiffin, Ohio

Dear Tiff: The answer is not engraved on the Rosetta Stone, dear. It's largely a matter of choice.

Usually the husband buys his wife an anniversary gift or sends flowers. Sometimes they exchange gifts.

Children, on occasion, give parents an anniversary present — and vice versa. The door is wide open on this one.

Alameda County planners ask Dublin moratorium

Alameda County Bureau HAYWARD — The Alameda County Planning Commission recommended a building moratorium on two areas of Dublin because of flood dangers this week.

The moratorium, if adopted by the board of supervisors, would be for a maximum of one year. If the county fails to adopt the freeze, the commission was told, it would be in violation of federal standards and thus would prevent citizens and businesses in the county from obtaining flood insurance at federally subsidized rates.

It would also cut off federally related financing for projects in flood hazard areas.

The proposed ordinance would affect about 45 acres in Dublin, including a strip immediately west of Interstate 680 from Cavalier Lane to Dublin Boulevard and a strip along Dublin Creek from Regional Street to 680.

The commission's recommendation would also affect some 290 acres in the San Lorenzo area.

County Planning Director Bill Fraley said property owners in the area will be notified when the supervisors hold a hearing on the ordinance.

Census still going on

Pleasanton's special census, which began last week, is still continuing and probably will not be completed until the end of the month. Census workers urge citizens who are contacted when they are not at home to call 462-3500 between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. as soon as possible. The census includes about 12 questions, including one on whether citizens would support bond issues for parks and for a new sewer plant. The three census workers shown above are Teri Foster, Susan Resare and Donna McChesney.

Real people, real problems

"Most people grow up with a very idealized version of the family — which has very little connection with reality," Joanne Koch explains.

"In the idealized version, there is no divorce. There are no children who misbehave. In the idealized family, the parents always know how to handle their children firmly and decisively. The mother is not working and the father always has the final word.

"But we have never, in all the homes we have visited, seen that ideal family. At least one — and usually more — of the ingredients for the ideal family are missing. As a result, people feel guilty for not conforming to the ideal — instead of adjusting to and appreciating the reality."

So the aim of Joanne and Lew Koch's new twice-weekly feature, "Coping," is to talk to real people about real problems.

"We want to address ourselves to the way family life really is — not the way we fantasize it, or the way it was 50 years ago for a few select families," says Lew Koch.

For several years, the Kochs have been writing a national column called "Family Lib."

"When we began the column," Joanne explains, "it was partially a tongue-in-cheek approach to the difference between the dream family and the reality. In many cases, we used examples — humorous and serious — from our own family."

But as the Kochs, who live in Evanston, Ill., traveled around the country, and as their reader mail increased, they realized that people are deeply concerned about coping with a whole array of family related problems: working mothers, children with behavior problems, marital and sexual problems, child abuse, the turbulence of adolescence, preparing young people for parenthood, alcoholism, product safety and children's rights.

Since not all these problems affect the Kochs directly, they realized their column was too limiting a format. They decided to adopt a more repertorial approach, isolating problems which affect enough Americans to color the quality of our national life.

Originally, the Kochs began their own marriage with a traditional arrangement: Joanne took care of the kids and Lew worked as a television news reporter in Chicago — a job that was time-consuming and emotionally consuming.

When Joanne got a part-time job as advertising director for an educational publisher, Lew thought of it as a "nice" amusement and a source of some extra spending money.

The birth of their third child turned their own family arrangement upside down.

When Joanne realized that they would probably not have any more children, she began thinking of the day when she would have more time for herself. She began writing articles and found that she was having "a wonderful time doing just what I wanted."

Simultaneously, the glamor of television reporting was wearing off for Lew. Most important, he felt deprived of a full relationship with his children.

Both Joanne and Lew bring very different perspectives to bear in their articles. She tends to be more interested in the psychological and personal aspects of problems. "I guess I'm more optimistic (than Lew) about the potential for people changing, more hopeful about their abilities to meet the demands of contemporary life."

Lew, on the other hand, sees politics as the root of many domestic problems. "I see too many educational systems as oppressing children and parents. I see the political system as doing its best not to help families and individuals. In order for people to get a fairer shake, they have to be better informed about the ways things work."

Since receiving her M.A. from Columbia University, where she studied on a Woodrow Wilson Fellowship after graduating from Cornell as Phi Beta Kappa, Joanne has written extensive articles about sexuality in preschoolers, child abuse, marriage counseling, working mothers, and an article about an International Congress of Child Psychiatrists which elicited this letter from a world-famous psychiatrist:

"It is such an important thing that there is someone to translate esoteric jargon into everyday language. I wonder where we (psychiatrists) would be without people like you — probably in a corner feeling very misunderstood."

Lew began his career at Chicago's City News Bureau, becoming a television news reporter at CBS and then NBC.
